POST AVERAGES 279.36 M.P.H. AT ALTITUDE OF OVER 5 MILES

Ann Harding, the world famous film star, is hardly recognizable in this photograph made at Honolulu (below) as she arrived on her way to China to recuperate from the breakdown which followed her legal fight with her divorced husband over the custody of their daughter. A photograph taken six months ago (top) affords a good comparison.

CARNERA WINS

IMPELLETTIERE BATTERED AFTER PROMISING START

Towel Thrown In During Ninth

NEW YORKER PUNCH-DRUNK

New York, Yesterday. A crowd of 20,000 saw Primo Carnera, Italian Man Mountain, batter Ray Impellettieri, the 6 ft. 7 1/2 inch New Yorker, to such a state of helplessness, that his seconds threw in the towel in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round eliminating bout for the world's heavyweight boxing championship at Madison Square Garden to-night.

The brawl between two giants, carrying with them more than 600 lb. of weight, was expected to prove one of the greatest struggles in the history of modern boxing.

Carnera looked the fitter of the two, but his boxing showed no signs of progress, causing him to be frequently out-pointed in the earlier rounds.

MURDEROUS ONSLAUGHTS
Warming up to his task after six rounds, however, he launched murderous onslaughts in the seventh and eighth rounds, chasing Impellettieri round the ring with a devastating two-handed attack which left the New Yorker reeling at the sound of the bell on each occasion.

SMALL AUSTRALIAN PLANES NAMED AT HANWORTH

London, Yesterday.—The first of a fleet of small mono-spar, bi-motor aeroplanes, which are being manufactured by the General Aircraft Company for use in Australia, were formally named "to-day" by Mrs. "Bruce, wife of the Australian" High Commissioner in London, in the course of a short ceremony at Hanworth Aerodrome.—British Wireless Service.

FRENCH RESENTMENT AROUSES GERMANY

BERLIN PRESS REVIVES OLD SUSPICIONS

FRANCE DECLARED LIVING FORTRESS

London, Yesterday.

The vehement attack made last night by Premier Flandin and other leaders in the French Chamber on Germany's re-armament has aroused resentment in the German press.

Among the striking statements uttered by M. Flandin was this:

"On opening their newspapers people abroad must know the France has stiffened in an effort worthy of her glorious past and that she is once more the France of the mobilisation of 1914 and the France of Verdun."

Typical headlines in the Berlin press are: "France Deals Fatal Blow to Disarmament Policy," "France the Grave-digger of Disarmament," and "The End of Disarmament."

FRANCE MAKES PREPARATIONS FOR SECURITY

Period Of Conscript Service Extended

PROFESSIONAL SOLDIERING ENCOURAGED

Paris, Yesterday.

After the debate on the Military Service Bill the Chamber of Deputies passed a vote of confidence in the Government by 354 votes to 210.—Reuter.

A later cable stated that the Government announced in Parliament that the period of military service has been increased from one year to 18 months for recruits called up in April 1935 and to two years for those called up in October 1935 and the following four years.

It also announced that a bill will be tabled in the Chamber of Deputies providing for a progressive reduction in the age of conscription from 21 to 20 and for an increase in the enlistment of professional soldiers.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S 30 M.P.H. SPEED LIMIT NOW IN FORCE

Unjust To Drivers Of Commercial Vehicles

OFFENDERS TO BE INFORMED OF PROSECUTION

London, Yesterday.

A speed limit of 30 miles per hour in built-up areas will be enforced from midnight to-day.

Controversy continues about the proposed police methods to detect offenders against the limit, and the Secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union to-day sent a strong protest to the Home Secretary on the grounds that the rigid enforcement of the limit would lead to injustice to drivers of commercial and public transport vehicles, since most of their vehicles are not fitted with speedometers.

The Assistant Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, who is in charge of the traffic department, to-day stated in reply to the criticisms that, although the disguised police patrols will operate to detect vehicles exceeding 30 miles per hour, drivers will only be summoned to stop by uniformed police officers.

The leading Nazi journal, the "Voelkischer Beobachter," writes "France is a living fortress and has always nipped in the bud every idea of disarmament and now she has slain it again."

The "Berliner Tageblatt" suspects that France wants to smash the basis of the Berlin negotiations.—Reuter.

NORWEGIAN CRISIS

Cabinet Resignation Forced In Storting

Oslo, Yesterday.

The Liberal Government under Premier Mowinkel, which took office in March, 1933, resigned to-day following a defeat in the Storting by 95 votes to 55.

The crisis arose from the Labour Party's demand for increased expenditure to alleviate unemployment. The Cabinet opposed the proposals because of their necessitating higher taxation.

The Labour Party are forming a new Government with M. Nygaardskold, President of the Storting, as Premier.—Reuter.

BOB WYATT HAS BROKEN JAW

May Not Leave With Team Next Tuesday

Kington, Yesterday.

R. E. S. Wyatt, the England Test captain, who was forced to leave the field in the first over of the England innings yesterday, as the result of being hit on the jaw by a fast-rising ball from E. A. Martin, is suffering from a broken jaw, though an operation is not considered necessary.

This was the statement issued following an x-ray examination last night.

He will take no further part in the Test, and it is thought unlikely that he will return home with the rest of the M.C.C. team next Tuesday, as he has been advised to remain in Kington for further attention in order to prevent complications setting in.—Reuter.

ITALO-ABYSSINIAN DISPUTE REPERCUSSION

Panama Enthusiasts Anxious To Fight For Tribesmen

Panama, Yesterday.

Over 1,000 British, West Indians, and canal employees yesterday met at the "coloured" Baptist church and protested against the attitude of Italy in the dispute with Abyssinia, in speeches which denounced Signor Mussolini.

A message was sent to the Emperor of Abyssinia declaring that those present pledged themselves to fight for him against Italy.—Reuter.

ENGLAND AGAIN DEFEATED AT MURRAYFIELD

IRELAND WIN THE CHAMPIONSHIP

SECOND HALF RECOVERY PROVES UNAVAILING

London, Yesterday.

By defeating England by 10 points to 7, after leading 10-4 at the interval, in the Calcutta Cup, Scotland to-day retained their sequence of rugby wins at Murrayfield during the past 10 seasons and gave Ireland their first unchallenged win in the series since the 1898-99 season.

By a curious coincidence, Ireland have tied in all their championship wins since that season, and last season finished with wooden spoons in the tournament, not having recorded a win. A crowd of 70,000 was present in glorious weather and the ground was in ideal condition.

Webb replaced Kendrew in the England pack, and Scotland were unchanged.

The first serious attack came from the Scots three-quarters who got going at great speed on several occasions. Their passing was almost clock-work in its precision, but they found Boughton, the England full-back in one of his most deadly moods.

PALACE TREASURE THEFT CASE

Defending Counsel Dies In Court

Nanking, Yesterday.

Proceedings at the Nanking District Court against Hsiao Shang-pai and Liu Kwan-gao in connexion with the alleged theft of the Palace treasures, were interrupted when the counsel for the defence, a lawyer named Tsao Tau-fah, succumbed to a stroke of apoplexy in the courtroom.

The deceased was 61 years of age and had studied law in Japan, where he practised for over 20 years. The proceedings were held in camera.—Reuter.

TRANSFER OF C.E.R. PREPARATIONS PROCEEDING

1,200 EMPLOYEES OF S.M.R. AT HARBIN

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Vigorous preparations are being pushed to ensure the smooth transfer of the Chinese Eastern Railway on Friday next.

The first batch of 1,200 employees of the South Manchuria Railway, which will be entrusted with the management of the C.E.R., have reached Harbin, whence they will be sent to various points on the C.E.R. in preparation for the transfer.

The formal transfer will be conducted by Mr. Julius Rudy, the General Manager, and Mr. Ting Chieh-sui, the Manchukuo Communications Minister.—Reuter.

WEATHER FORECAST

The anticyclone over north-east China has strengthened and is spreading eastward, a ridge of moderately high pressure extends from it across the Eastern Sea, to the Bonin Islands. The depression is situated to the north of Hokkaido moving north-east. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was east winds, moderate, fine to cloudy.

2,044 MILES COVERED IN 7 HRS. 19 MINS.

AMERICAN FLIER SETS UNOFFICIAL RECORD

TWO CYLINDERS CUT OUT

Cleveland, Yesterday.

Captain Wiley Post established an unofficial record for sustained flight here to-day, when he covered 2,044 miles in seven hours 19 minutes, averaging 279.36 m.p.h. at an altitude of over five miles.

Post refused to discuss the details of his 8 tempted stratosphere flight from Los Angeles to New York, as he is selling the story.

He said he felt fine, although slightly deaf from the roar of the motors.

"I want to put my ship in a museum some day," he continued, "and may be it would be alright if you put me in a museum too."

"His top speed was 340 m.p.h. and he maintained this for two hours."

The airport superintendent said that as Wiley Post landed he found that ice had formed on the induction coils of the motor, cutting out two of the cylinders.—Reuter.

WARNING NOTE ON CURRENCY DEVALUATION

Return To Gold And Stabilisation Urged

YEAR'S CONTINUOUS FALL OF STERLING EXPECTED

London, Yesterday.

Stressing the danger of competitive currency depreciation, a meeting of the council of the International Chamber of Commerce to-day urged the governments concerned not merely to return to gold but also to attempt a provisional stabilisation.

Professor T. E. Gregory, Cassel Professor of Economics in the University of London, stated that it appeared that a continued fall of sterling over the next 12 months was generally anticipated. He doubted whether devaluation could produce any beneficial results if the danger existed that other countries would steal a march by further depreciation, or that the export stimulus might be offset by increased tariffs and other restrictions.

The break-up of the Gold Bloc, he said, would also bring pressure to bear on President Roosevelt to devalue the dollar by a further 10 per cent.—Reuter.

DUKE AND DUCHESS OF KENT

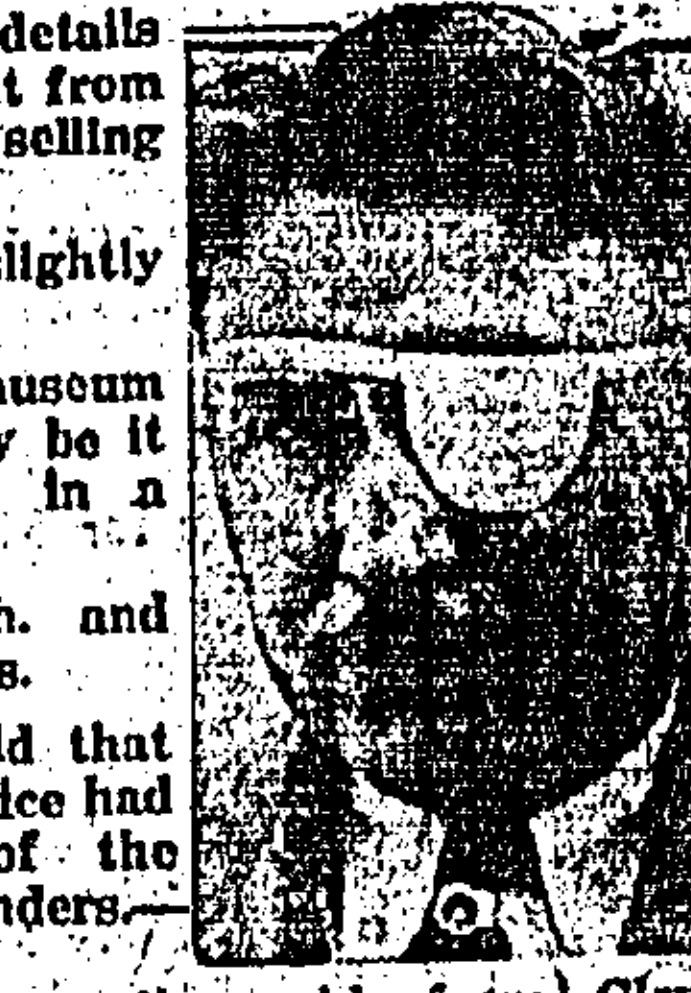

Given Great Send-Off From Kingston

London, Yesterday.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent concluded their stay in Jamaica yesterday and left by special aeroplane for Nassau, capital of the Bahamas Islands.

They received a continuous ovation when driving from Government House to the air base, and as the aeroplane took off. His Majesty's sloop, Scarborough, which is at present in Kingston harbour, fired the royal salute.

An earlier cable from Cleveland stated that Wiley Post, who left Los Angeles on Friday morning, landed at Cleveland yesterday as his oxygen supply was running out.

Officials stated that his speed averaged 340 miles per hour, but a later report stated that the speed was 270 m.p.h.—Reuter.

Captain Wiley Post, the only Indian flier who circled the globe in record time, was in New York on a mysterious mission March 2.

The airman, whose effort made a stratosphere flight from Los Angeles to New York car to grief due to engine trouble, declined to reveal the nature of his mission to newspaper men upon his arrival in New York from Los Angeles.

LLOYD GEORGE AND CABINET

Committee To Consider "New Deal" Scheme

London, Yesterday.

A sub-committee of the Cabinet presided over by Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, including Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. J. H. Thomas, Minister for the Dominions, Oliver Stanley, Minister of Labour, Sir E. Hilton Young, Minister of Health, and Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, met at No. 11 Downing Street yesterday to consider Mr. Lloyd George's "New Deal" proposals.

The Premier has written Mr. Lloyd George saying that before coming to a final decision on his plans the Government will certainly invite him to meet the committee.—Reuter.

London, Yesterday.—Their Majesties the King and Queen sent telegrams conveying congratulations to Princess Ingrid of Sweden and Crown Prince Axel of Denmark on their betrothal, of which Their Majesties were officially informed yesterday. ESCAPE

By L. A. G. STRONG

"SIX."
"Sir!"
"Very well, then. Five."
"Sir!"

"You know perfectly well by now, Russell, that if you are dissatisfied with my marking, I'm always ready to revise it—in the downward direction."

"Oh, sir!"
"Are you satisfied, or do you wish me to revise still further?"
The victim sighed, rolling his eyes with every symptom of polite ill-usage.

Champernown looked down at his book. He took a grip on himself, digging his nails into the palms of his hands. The moment had arrived. He glanced at the next few lines of the text. No, they were not unfairly hard. No one could say that he was deliberately choosing them because they were unfairly hard.

Even supposing they contained opportunities for just the sort of mistake that... Was it fair for a man, whispered some inner voice, to use his psychological knowledge, his knowledge of a boy's character, in a guess to the boy's undoing? Nonsense, he retorted. Nonsense. It was the boy's business to know the whole piece, every word of it!

"Henderson. Translate."
A fair-haired, handsome boy looked up with an air of surprise.

"Me, sir?"

"Your name is Henderson, I believe."

"Quite right, sir."

"What did you say?"

"I said it was, sir."

Champernown ventured to look up and glared into the blue eyes that with such deceptive frankness met his own.

"Translate, then—if you will be so good."
The boy smiled. He stretched out his arms, as if shooting imaginary cuffs, pulled up his trousers, settled himself erect at his desk, smiled once more obligingly and gave the passage his attention. He looked at it for a couple of seconds and raised his eyebrows. The man must be humoured, said his gesture, and he contrived also subtly to suggest that what was being asked of him was unreasonable.

"Let me see, now," he murmured, as if to himself.

"Get on," exclaimed Champernown thickly and stopped, saying savagely to himself, Fool, fool, don't let yourself be drawn.

"I beg your pardon, sir?"

"Get on," said Champernown.

The boy looked again at the text, inclining his head first to one side and then to the other.

"Jude," he began. "Thence—or thence-forward."

He paused, and looked expectantly at Champernown, who kept eyes grimly fixed on his book.

"Jude," repeated Henderson.

"Thence-forward, or thence. No, thenceforward, I think. Thence-forward. Atrocious certamen." He hesitated for a moment. "The atrocious strife."

Champernown uttered a noise midway between a growl and a hiss.

"Isn't that right, sir?" asked the boy, leaning forward as one terribly disappointed by the failure of his effort to please.

"Tacitus, as you may possibly have noticed," observed the master with elaborate sarcasm, "has an occasional habit of leaving out the verb."

"Yes, sir. I had noticed."

"It is a pity, then, Henderson, that you do not learn by experience."

"Mr. Bernard Shaw says that we never learn by experience, sir."

Champernown saw red. "The boy was deliberately provoking him. Never mind. He would not let himself be drawn. He would not be led into making a fool of himself again before the class. Henderson did not know his piece. He had concentrated upon the difficult bit near the end, the bit with all the words in it, supposing that Champernown would give it to him. Champernown had guessed he would. Evidently the guess had been sound. All that was necessary was to sit tight and let him establish his ignorance."

He sat tight, refusing every red rag, every bait, and soon was able legitimately to pass sentence.

"Since you have omitted the formality of preparing your lesson, Henderson, you will remain in and repair the omission this afternoon." That sounded final enough. "Repair what, sir?"

"Do the lesson which you have not done."

"I'm awfully sorry, sir, but I'm afraid that's impossible." Shaking his head from side to side, the boy regarded him with sad blue eyes.

"Impossible?"
"Quite, I'm afraid, sir. You see, I have to attend field practice with Mr. Bevan." Russell looked regretful.

Champernown swallowed. "Very well, then. You will do it to-morrow afternoon."
"Impossible, too, sir, I'm afraid. The Silchester match."

It was a point of principle, and Champernown was not going to let it go. He had had Henderson badly on his nerves for weeks. He had been ready to like the boy, to be friendly with him. He hadn't begun all this. Yet, for no reason at all, the boy baited him without mercy, seldom giving him a loophole for open action. Even so, he told himself, this was not the reason for pursuing him. It was a point of principle.

As he expected, the day after the match found Henderson equally elusive. Apparently he had another rendezvous with the headmaster. Doggedly, Champernown made his way after lunch to Bevan's study. He felt at a disadvantage before he had begun, but persisted, face and ears reddening.

"Oh, come." The great, bluff, prematurely bald man eyed him tolerantly. "Oh, come. Rather ancient history, isn't it?"
Champernown swallowed. He knew before he started that he was on a fool's errand. Henderson was the apple of the cricketing headmaster's eye, and to make matters worse, he had made seventy-four in the match.

"Very well," Champernown was saying in a few minutes. "As you wish, of course. It will make matters difficult for me with my form if I have to show preferential treatment."

The headmaster raised his eyebrows, but refused to be ruffled.

"Hardly preferential treatment, Champernown," he said benignly. "Boys are understanding creatures, you know. They'll understand all right."

"They will indeed, thought Champernown bitterly, as he made his way to the Common Room.

"Hullo, Champernown. Coffee? Black, isn't it?"

"Thanks, Forsyth. I'll pour it out myself."

"You look hot and bothered. Anything wrong?"

Champernown hesitated, then poured out his grievance.

"I shall announce it before the whole class," he concluded savagely, "that it's the headmaster's wish."

"My dear man you can't possibly do that. It would be a hopeless thing to do."

"I'm grateful to you for your opinion, of course."

"All right, all right! There's no need to get shirty. You must manage your own affairs as you think best. But if you want to know—"

"Thanks. I don't."

At twenty past three on the following afternoon Champernown decided he must have a breath of air. Even with the windows wide open, the empty classroom was stifling. Henderson's exercise book lay open before him. He had taken twenty minutes over it, looking closely for faults, then over-marking the boy in his morbid, self-exulting anxiety to be fair.

The business of the evaded imposition still smouldered in his mind, less as a personal reverse than as a defeat to justice. There, whatever happened during the rest of the term, would remain a gap, a blank, a loss, a thing undone.

With an overwrought gesture he put the pile of exercise books inside the desk, slammed down the lid and made for the field. Coming out round the corner of the chapel he ran into a small and white-faced procession carrying a limp figure.

"Henderson... In the nets... Ball came smack through... I always said that net was dangerous... Full on the temple... Yes, one of Lacey's hardest..."

PARIS SETS UP STYLE FOR THE SPRING

GLASS FABRIC

Paris. "CHINESE ink" is a colour and "chaste lady" a hat, according to the latest Paris style set up for spring.

The hat is a straw one which Schiaparelli makes demure by ripping the brim off the back and fastening it under the chin. The colour is ink blue and it shares importance with orange, ginger brown, horizon blue and a medley of spring greens.

Again this dressmaking house starts with a glass fabric, using the stiff, glistening stuff to make half the tunic of an evening dress, a whole jacket in many coloured wide stripes, and numerous belts and girdles. A new velvet takes a bow in an afternoon ensemble, handsomely black but glinting all over with tiny bright points like the "snow" on a Christmas card.

Finger Tip Chic Vogue

NATURAL SHADES LESS FAVOURED

New York. MATCH your lips to your fingertips is the newest fashion edict.

A vivid, young, light red with a yellowish rather than bluish tinge is back as the last word in finger-tip chic and fashionable beauties are colouring lips the same shade. It's bad taste, they say these days, to let lips and nails "scream" at each other from opposite ends of the scale of reds.

The vogue comes from Paris where "women are wise in beauty wiles." It's been pushed along, say stylists, by the preponderance of black clothes in Parisian winter fashions and the new midseason collections. It's part of the new make-up trend of "back to the natural," for vivid light red the shade of blood is a colour taken from nature in marked contrast to enamels with a bluish, purplish or oxblood cast.

Those bluish or purplish red enamels are slipping right out of the picture, say those who watch the vogue. Even the natural shades, so good last summer, are being a little less favoured and the artificial gold and silver flecked varnish for night is simply "out." Mother of pearl with a rosy cast is still good for evening, though, for it adds a shimmering luster which many women like.

FLAT CORKSCREW CURLS

NEW YORK'S LATEST HAIR FASHION

New York. HAIRDRESSING this season is distinctly different from anything in our time. Its basis is no longer waves—but flat—corkscrew curls arranged in bands, which may form a coronet-like line across the top of the head from ear to ear; or a diagonal path from ear to nape; or form a thickly massed cap-like effect at the back of the head. The neck, however, is swept clean of curls, the movement being swiftly upward.

Bangs are modish, but are discouraged for those whose good look they do not enhance—and these are many. One coiffure told me that "bangs detract from a look of innocence and artlessness, giving a face an expression of calculating wisdom." One is forced to suspect that little over-intense! However, it is well to consider the matter before having one's hair clipped for a fringe.

REMOVING MILDEW FROM LINEN

TO remove mildew from linen make a paste of one teaspoon each of soft soap and powdered starch, two tablespoons of table salt, and enough lemon-juice to mix. Spread the paste on the mildewed spots, and expose to the fresh air. Wash the linen in the ordinary way and if necessary repeat process.

RED ARMS

If the upper arms are red, rough, or inclined gooseflesh, the circulation must be stimulated. Deep pinching movements are good in this case, as is a paste made of toilet oatmeal, powdered pumice and peroxide, applied with help of a nail brush.

To prevent any soreness, it may be necessary to apply almond or olive oil after rinsing off the paste.

A FINISHING POLISHER FOR ALL HAIR

A Piece of old white silk makes a finishing polisher for all hair. If very lightly smeared with vasoline, it gives a particularly lovely finish after waving. About as much vasoline as would give a thin cover on the little finger-nail is enough for the whole head.

What Will Be Worn This Year

Skirts Are Slightly Flared Or Gored

IN 1935 you will wear skirts that are slightly flared or goared, modern leg-of-mutton elbow sleeves, a wide belt to give you waist trimness, a jacket effect buttoning down the front, and a higher collar to give you neck importance.

Your hat, fairly flat crowned, will tend to dip over your nose in front and the nape of your neck at the back, and your handbag will be elongated.

For the morning, the skirt can be straight, and in the case of a suit, the choice of details is very wide. You can have a "jacket" with a dress, or with a skirt and blouse; in the first case your neck may show a high ruffled line—organi frilling does the trick—or a prim one, which is where pique comes in. Revers or a vest in pique are good.

SATIN AND MOIRE MODELS

EVENING TAFFETA

MORE conservative are satin and moire evening models having all the skirt fullness drawn to the back where it is headed by a tiny velvet bow of contrasting colour—water green satin, for instance, with a red bow.

The sensational evening dress is a taffeta one in the ink blue shade, overlaid with a diamond-shaped apron of bright pink glass fabric, one point held at the neck by a garland of pink gardenias which also serve to define an oval decollete in back.

THE ENHANCEMENT OF NATURAL LOVELINESS

"ONE thing I should like to point out," said Miss Elizabeth Arden, the beauty specialist. "Is that all beauty treatment should be nothing more than an enhancement of natural loveliness. When people talk of manufacturing beauty they are speaking without knowledge. Artificiality is a thing to be avoided at all costs. It is not by a surface treatment that one achieves true beauty, but by applying the fundamental rules of health, by protecting one's heritage of beauty, and by making the most of one's points by an art which conceals itself."

ZOUAVE INFLUENCE

THE stealthy Zouave influence is spotted in a white crepe dress embroidered with ink blue sequins, the hip-swathed Zouave style with a wide-draped girdle of blue taffeta knotted in front well below waist line. Otherwise waists are rather simply belted, day dresses with anolop or box calf or white patent leather, and day and evening frocks with white transparent bolts taking colour from the fabric beneath.

PIN TUCKS AND NARROW SEAMS

THE pin tucks and narrow seams ending in miniature box pleats give height if you are not tall. The sleeves are slightly full above the elbow, so that you can move easily and freely.

LIQUID ROUGE FOR GREASY SKIN

LIQUID rouge is splendid for the really greasy skin, but needs more skill in application than the other kinds. It should be applied either with the finger-tips or with moistened cotton-wool. Compact rouge, too, is best put on with a fresh pad of cotton wool. If a very fine powder lotion is used as a foundation, a natural effect can be obtained by blending in the rouge before patting on the lotion, allowing a little deeper colour than you need when the make-up is finished. Cream rouge is, perhaps, the most popular type to-day, but also the most difficult to apply successfully. The secret is to use it sparingly and little by little.

POLICE BEAT CLUB TO ENTER SENIOR SHIELD SOCCER FINAL

HONG KONG LADIES RETAIN CUP

SAINTS LOSE BY FIRST HALF GOAL

CHAMPIONS' DEFENCE SUPREME

The Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club retained the Caer Clark Cup trophy for the eighth successive season yesterday when they defeated the St. Andrew's Ladies by a goal scored by Mrs. Moutrie in the first half of their thrilling play-off, which was witnessed by a large gathering of spectators in glorious weather on the Y.M.C.A. ground.

The first half produced the best hockey, and the champions' defence underwent a gruelling time, but came through their ordeal in brilliant manner, the goal-keeper, Miss B. Hance, and the two backs, Miss Gray and Miss Hebling, giving their finest performances this season.

Although the St. Andrew's Ladies, pressed for long periods in the opening half — they were twice within an ace of scoring — their forwards lacked finish, although much credit is due to Mrs. White for her gallant efforts to break through on her own.

GERMANY PREPARING FOR HOCKEY SERIES

Newcomers Do Well Against Y.M.C.A.

INTERNATIONAL GAME NEXT THURSDAY

A fairly keen and exciting hockey encounter was seen on the Y.M.C.A. ground yesterday when a strong Y.M.C.A. side defeated the German International hockey team by 3 goals to 1.

Germany have just been able to scrape together a team to meet Portugal next Thursday on the Club ground, but O. May and G. Sommer have made an excellent job out of remedying the mistakes of several newcomers to the game, and the side seen yesterday gave indications of promise.

Good Goalkeeping

Ammann, Germany's goalkeeper, was outstanding throughout, stopping several snorlers from S. Fowler and Brown; his clearances were very quick, following a stop either with his hand or stick.

May was the better of the two backs and often had the opposing forwards beaten by neat stick-work. Rock played a hard although he could improve with a little faster clearances.

Schmidt was good at right-half, but slackened off slightly in the second half.

Sommer's Good Display

Sommer, in the pivot position, spoiled well, but was not comfortable, being a little too slow for a half-back. As there is no one else

DARTS LEAGUE

Fusiliers Surprise Card P.O.'s Club

SAIORS' FIRST DEFEAT

The Chief and Petty Officers' Club suffered their first defeat in the McEwan-Younger Darts League, at the Naval Dockyard last night when they were beaten by the Royal Welch Fusiliers by the odd game in nine after a very evenly contested match.

The score was 4-all after the eighth game, but Brammer and Costen just managed to beat Sargent and King to win the match for the visitors.

The scores were:— King (C. and P. O. C.) lost to Lo Poldevan.

Chambers (C. and P. O. C.) lost to McGuinness.

Sargent (C. and P. O. C.) beat Solis.

Fisher (C. and P. O. C.) beat Evans.

Elvy (C. and P. O. C.) beat Brammer.

Yooman (C. and P. O. C.) lost to Costen.

Chambers and Elvy (C. and P. O. C.) lost to Lo Poldevan and McGuinness.

Yooman and Fisher (C. and P. O. C.) beat Solis and Evans.

Sargent and King (C. and P. O. C.) lost to Brammer and Costen.

A goal scored in the first half by Mrs. Moutrie gave the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club custody of the Caer Clark Cup for the eighth successive year when they defeated the St. Andrew's Ladies by an only goal in their play-off for the trophy on the Y.M.C.A. ground yesterday. The champions are seen on the right, while the runners-up are on the left. (King's Studio)

Penalty Is Missed And Kowloon Drop Points FUSILIERS WIN

Kowloon received another setback in their endeavour to climb from the bottom of the league table yesterday when they were beaten on their own ground by the Royal Welch Fusiliers. The game was fairly even, but the soldiers were quicker to take advantage of opportunities and managed to score the only goal of the game.

Owing to the similarity in the shirts of the teams, Kowloon had to change and turned out in white. Roberts was the first to enter the limelight, but a fine cross-shot went just wide. Grindley culminated a second attack with a great drive from about 20 yards which brought Boyes to his knees, but he scooped the ball out for Willis to clear. Grindley again took possession of the ball and made a deliberate effort from mid-field, the ball just going wide.

Rowlands Saves Well

Knox then took play to the other end and tested Rowlands with a long shot from the wing, but the soldiers' custodian gathered safely and cleared well down the field.

A great save by Rowlands called for applause from the spectators when he dashed out and intercepted the ball five yards from his goal, both G. White and McKelvie going for it at the same time, Rowlands managed to evade a "sandwich" and cleared strongly.

Awarded a penalty for "hands" against Grindley, White took the kick, but Rowlands made a great save by diving and pushing the ball around the post for a corner.

Continued pressure by the Fusiliers was unavailing and the score at half-time remained 0-0.

Kowloon Forwards Fail

Kowloon had a spell of attacking on the resumption, Rowlands having to concede a corner to save a great shot from Barlow. Rowlands cleared to Roberts from the corner, the latter taking the ball up the wing only to shoot wide.

NAVY BILLIARDS CHAMPIONSHIP

Delight To Encounter Duncan In Final

In a very even billiards match at the Chief and Petty Officers' Club last night, H.M.S. Delight qualified to meet H.M.S. Duncan in the Final Round of the Small Ships Billiards Championship by defeating H.M.S. Diana on the aggregate score.

At the end of the match the teams shared the six games so the result depended on the aggregate score; the Delight were declared winners by 23 points.

In their semi-final match the Duncan defeated the Herald.

Last night's scores were:— H.M.S. Diana 100 Marshall 92

H.M.S. Delight 100 Fry 72

H.M.S. Duncan 100 Davies 100

H.M.S. Herald 100 Riley 51

SAPPERS BEAT HOLDERS IN JUNIOR SHIELD NAVY MISS OPPORTUNITIES AFTER SCORING FIRST

An exciting and keenly contested struggle between the Engineers and the Navy, the holders, which extended to extra time before a decision was reached, resulted in a victory for the soldiers by the odd goal in three.

The Navy had only themselves to blame for their defeat. They enjoyed easily the better of the exchanges during the first 90 minutes, during which they should have gained a comfortable lead, but the exceptionally poor marksmanship displayed by their forwards lost them the day.

SUNSTROKE VICTIM IN SOCCER GAME

KOWLOON BEATEN BY ATHLETIC

VERY SCRAPPY JUNIOR ENCOUNTER

Playing with only 10 men after the first 15 minutes, Kowloon proved no match for the Athletic in their Second Division soccer encounter yesterday, losing by three goals to nil.

It was a very poor game generally, definitely not up to Second Division standard. The Chinese were quicker on the ball, cleverer in their passing movements and were more accurate in their shooting.

Player Collapses

McDonald sprained his wrist soon after the commencement and the sun which was very strong, completed the work and he had to be carried off soon after the game started, suffering from sun-stroke.

EASTERN DEFEAT UNIVERSITY

LATE GOAL DECIDES THE ISSUE

BLAKE'S GOOD DISPLAY AT CENTRE-HALF

A fast encounter at Causeway Bay resulted in the Eastern beating University by the only goal in their Second Division soccer game yesterday.

Eastern had the better of the exchanges, and were superior to the University. Their win was attributed to the sound work of their forwards, whose speed and accurate passing troubled the University eleven.

D. S. Blake, playing at centre-half for the University, gave the best performance and was mainly responsible for keeping the score down. K. T. Ang and K. Y. Lee, the University backs, had a hard task in the final stages, but played admirably.

POLICE AND SAPPERS SHARE POINTS

In their Third Division encounter at Soekunpoo yesterday, the Engineers shared the points with the Police, both teams notting once. Hong Hing opened for the Police, but the Sappers equalised in the second half through Piper.

SURPRISE TRIUMPH WELL DESERVED

HALF BACKS BOTTLE UP CLUB ATTACK

BLACKBURN'S BEST DISPLAY

CONFOUNDING all the critics, the Police entered the Final of the Senior Shield at Caroline Hill yesterday, gaining a very convincing win over the Club by the only goal of an exciting game.

At no time during the whole of the 90 minutes, did the Club look likely to score, the Police defence having little difficulty in disposing of the weak efforts of a disjointed Club forward-line.

The Police undoubtedly owe a great deal to their magnificent half-back line, who exceeded all expectations by the capable manner in which they dominated the Club forwards. Gough in particular, was never more than a foot from Howe during the whole game, and Bickford was reduced to insignificance by the efforts of Brooks. With these two men literally "out of the game," the Club forwards lost heart, and, with hardly any support from their halves, except the tireless attempts of Robertson to fuse some cohesion and life into them, the Police had matters all their own way.

Perkins had little to do; he made one good save from Howe in the first few minutes, but afterwards was seldom called upon.

Chris Pile and Blackburn were on tip-top form, and displayed splendid anticipation and prompt tackling and clearing. Blackburn saved two almost certain goals early in the game, and gave one of the best exhibitions of his career.

Nothing but the highest praise can go the halves. Brilliant in defence, completely subduing two of the fastest forwards in the Colony in Howe and Bickford, and yet still finding the time to keep well up with their forwards during an attack, their combined efforts made them probably the most effective half-back line seen this season. Parker in particular, had a trying time with a dangerous wing pair in Farrow and Fowler, but, although not always successful, managed to block the majority of their efforts, and, during the later exchanges, gave Fowler little room to move.

Johnson Excels

Of the forwards, Johnston was a splendid leader, his quickness proving far beyond the capabilities of Skinner, and giving Strange and Gamble many an anxious moment. Tommy Pile kept Johnston going with several beautiful passes, and with Stephens working hard in the rear to bring the ball forward, the Police had a very dangerous right wing.

The left wing, Green and Moss, although showing glimpses of speed and skill, were too well marked by Robertson to be really dangerous, though Moss effected two or three breakaways in the last few minutes.

Club Defence Shine

The Club defence, terribly overworked throughout, came through a gruelling game with flying colours. The score should, by rights, have been more like three or four all, than the solitary goal scored, and it was entirely due to the untiring efforts of Rodger, Gamble, and Sid Strange, not forgetting the good work of Robertson, that the score was kept so low.

Rodger was called upon continuously throughout the game, and made countless brilliant saves, two at point-blank range from Johnston, being especially good. Strange and Gamble were a safe pair of backs, and, though not perhaps quite so polished in their play as their opposite numbers, nevertheless, contrived to keep the ball well up the field with repeated powerful clearances.

ATHLETIC TO BEAT S. CHINA "B" IN TO-DAY'S GAME

SENIOR SHIELD CLASSIC

AN EVEN FIRST DIVISION LEAGUE ENCOUNTER

South China's greatest success was witnessed on the Soekunpoo ground when they defeated the Artillery by a solitary goal to win the 1932-33 League championship, and South China "B" may repeat that success this afternoon when they encounter the Athletic in their semi-final round clash in the Senior Shield competition.

The Athletic are fielding the identical team which gave a wonderful exhibition of soccer against the League leaders on the Club ground a month ago, and, if form does not go awry, they will surely

WYATT KNOCKED OUT AND TWO TEST RECORDS

ENGLAND 27 FOR 4 AGAINST 535 FOR 7

Headley 270 Not Out

Kingston, Yesterday. England are in a desperate position as the result of yesterday's sensational play in the fourth Test match against the West Indies. At the close of play the tourists, with six wickets in hand, required 358 to save the follow on.

Two Test records were shattered during the day, and Bob Wyatt, the England captain, was knocked out by a blow on the jaw when attempting to avoid a fast rising ball from Martindale in the first over of the tourists' innings. He was immediately rushed to hospital for an x-ray examination.

George Headley (132) and Ben Sealey (60) continued their third wicket partnership of 143 in glorious weather and on a perfect wicket and added 59 before Sealey was beaten by one of Paine's spinners when 91. The partnership added 202 runs.

CONSTANTINE HITS OUT

Len Constantine, however, stepped into the breach, and, with orders to score fast, he rattled up 34 out of 58 before stepping in front of straight one from Paine. The tourists then secured two quick wickets for 29 runs. Rolfe Grant, brother of the home skipper, however, dispelled all doubts of a collapse when he joined Headley in a big seventh wicket stand that resulted in the addition of 147 runs of which Grant claimed 77.

Having bettered the previous West Indian Test record aggregate of 471, scored at Georgetown in 1930, George Grant applied the closure at 535 for 7, giving the tourists little over an hour's play before stumps were drawn.

BRILLIANT HEADLEY

Headley played brilliant cricket for his 270 not out, which bettered his own West Indian Test score record of 223, scored on the same ground in the 1930 series. Andy Sandham's 325 in the same game stands as the English record.

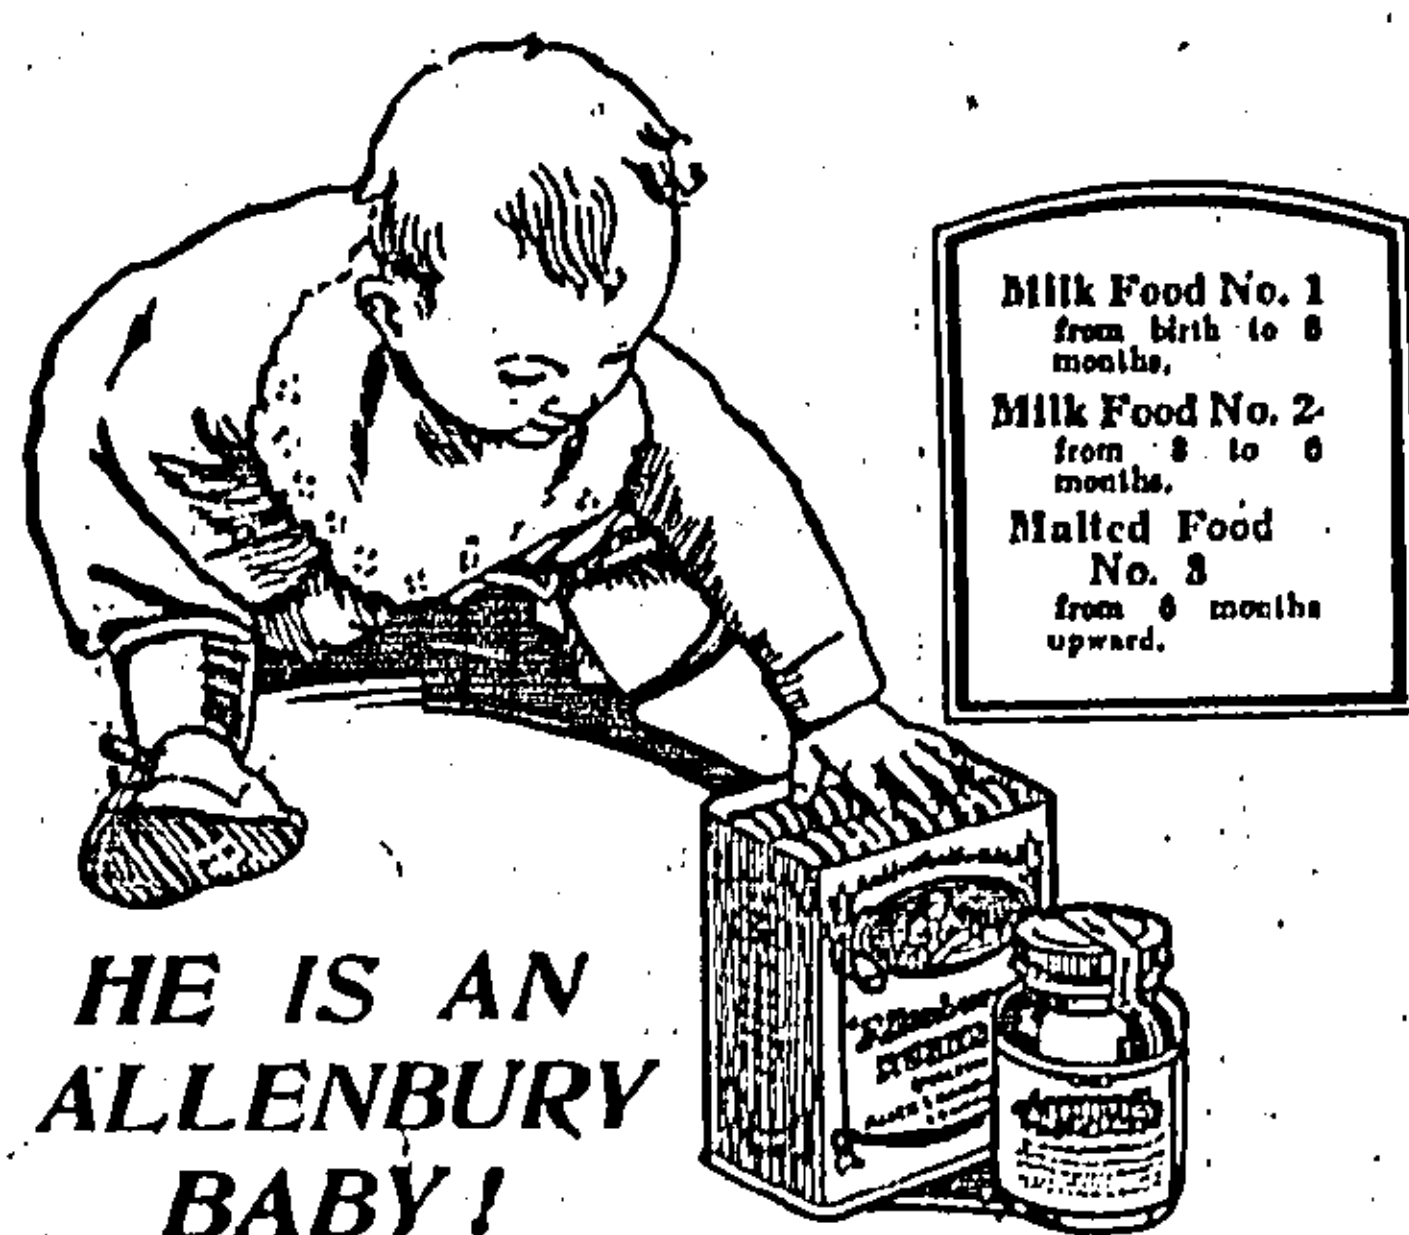

Hitting 30 boundaries in a stay of 493 minutes, Headley scored all round the wicket with effortless ease, displaying a refreshing variety of strokes. He registered 176, at Barbados in 1930, in his first Test against England.

The tourists commenced disastrously, losing Wyatt in the first over as the result of an injury, and never recovered against the "shock" attack of Martindale and Constantine.

Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were:—

Death Penalty For Kidnappers

Hauptmann's Guilt Never In Doubt

(By Arthur Brisbane)

HAUPTMANN has been sentenced to death, and, in the language of crime, was due to "burn" in the electric chair on March 18.

He, however, lodged an appeal, but few of the delays that make our legal system more profitable to lawyers than to Justice will play any part in this matter. Public opinion would not tolerate it.

Organized crime is once more warned that kidnapping means death; but a warning means little. You cannot deal successfully with smallpox by attacking each sore as it appears on the surface or by limping the savages that scrape the entire body with sharp shovels. It is necessary to go deeper and stop the smallpox.

The United States must go deeper than the killing of an occasional criminal. It must find a way to inspire respect for the law.

No Doubt Possible

Journalists and others trained in the observation of crime had no doubt of the prisoner's guilt. The judge's charge clearly expressed his belief that guilt had been proved, and one of Hauptmann's own lawyers told a reporter what the verdict would be before the jury had been out for five minutes, although he did not speak for publication.

Arthur Brisbane is America's greatest editor and best-known commentator on public affairs.

That there was doubt in the mind of some juror is indicated by a discussion lasting more than eleven hours. Perhaps it was doubt as to the degree of guilt, although that would seem improbable. All four of the women jurors wept after sending Hauptmann to death. Their tears, due to emotion caused by a painful duty, did not indicate doubt as to the justice of their verdict. No male juror wept.

Women Jurors

In New York State, where a law is proposed permitting women to sit on juries, some will say that weeping indicates a woman's unfitness to sit on a jury. Others, more intelligent, will say it proves that women should sit on juries, tears demonstrating higher emotion and conscientiousness in the female.

One miserable creature more or less staring in horror at the death-chair, straining at the straps as the mysterious current enters the brain through the shaven skull and goes out through the calf of the leg, does not help justice. But cold-blooded criminals planning for profit in crimes not based on sudden impulse or the desperation of hunger will consider carefully the profit-and-loss possibilities. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, walking through the little door that leads to the death-chair, may convince other professional criminals planning a "snatch" that kidnapping, with its uncertainties plus the electric chair when convicted, does not pay.

Capone's Words True

The "conviction" of Hauptmann confirms the statement that Al Capone, imprisoned for his failure to pay his income tax, made to me when I visited him in gaol immediately after the Lindbergh kidnapping, urging him to help trace the child through his innumerable crime connections. Capone said:—

"If they let me out I will put my kid brother here in my place as a hostage. I don't suppose anybody would suggest that I would double-cross my own brother. I'll go out and see what I can do. I have many angles, and if this kidnapping is a regular job by any regular mob, some one of my angles ought to turn up something."

"But take it from me: This is not the work of a regular mob. They would know too much to try that kind of a crime. It is the work of some fool operating on his own account."

Capone was not released to utilize his "angles."

An Eye For An Eye
And it turns out that his judgment was sound. "A fool working on his own account" did commit the shocking crime. And he will pay for it according to the Bible formula.

In ancient days he would have been tortured slowly to death, perhaps as Ravalline was tortured after he killed Henri IV, with atrocities too horrible to contemplate, including the final torture of molten lead. What we call "Civilisation" has passed that stage, thanks to the French Revolution, but it has not passed the stage in which the highest earthly wisdom says to the criminal:—

"It is wrong to kill, and if you kill I shall kill you!"

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Pig-Breeder Beaten Unconscious

A daring highway robbery was reported at Kowloon City on Friday night when a Chinese pig-breeder was waylaid and robbed at the South Gate of the Walled City by four men, who beat him to insensibility with short hammers and made off with his canvas belt, which contained $44 in notes and cash.

Yun Po, 48-year-old pig-breeder of No. 68 Sai Tau Village, reports that he left his pig farm at Hok Lo Chuen at about 9.45 p.m. on Friday and proceeded home.

Nearing the South Gate of the Walled City, he was tackled round the legs by a Chinese male who took him unawares from behind, and, before he could shout for help, three others armed with short hammers beat him to insensibility.

He regained consciousness to discover that the men had made off with his canvas waist supporter, which contained $44 in notes and cash.

'ASPRO'

THOUSANDS have testified to the efficacy of 'ASPRO,' and thousands more have proved by use that 'ASPRO' definitely soothes away the excruciating pains of Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Headaches, etc. It quickly stops the pain. There is no waiting or delay; furthermore,
'ASPRO' is safe, and it does not harm the heart, digestion, or stomach.
It can be taken by anyone, anywhere, at any time, and the reason why 'ASPRO' has such a large number of uses in every home is because, after ingestion in the system, it is an internal antiseptic—an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—an anti-periodic—a powerful germicide, and a definite solvent of Uric Acid. Let your slogan be:—
GET 'ASPRO' AND GET RID OF PAIN.

Wonderful for Lumbago and Rheumatism

10 Day Road,
Dear Sirs, Keewick, S. Austr.
My father has suffered for a number of years with LUM-BAGO and RHEUMATISM in a severe state, being in bed for 9 weeks at a time each year. Some time ago he tried
'ASPRO' Tablets for relief, and they acted wonderfully.
During the last 11 years he has taken very many Tablets but he enjoys better health and does not get a return of severe pains nor any ill effects from taking 'ASPRO'.
He continues to take 'ASPRO'
Tablets daily and would recommend anyone suffering from LUMBAGO or RHEUMATISM to try 'ASPRO' Tablets as they give such splendid relief.

Dear Sirs,
For nearly 12 months I

Sciatica, and could hardly walk with the pains in both to take 'ASPRO,' which I

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1935

Hong Kong And Canton

THERE are always some people who in days of adversity take the most dismal views possible; and one can meet croakers in Hong Kong without taking any trouble to look very far. One specialist in pessimism explained the other day that Hong Kong was "finished." Travel of the future would be in the air, and Canton was going to be the air-centre, Imperial Airways could not see any further East than Singapore. China would not sanction any flying across her territory until Canton was in a position to keep a monopoly of it. The future of Far Eastern flying to other territories would rest with the Dutch Company in the South and the Japanese in the North. The Kwantung Administration was smarting under the remembrance of old incidents which had been forgotten here, and of unintentional slights of recent date, and her attitude to Hong Kong was simply "delenda est Carthago." This programme was to achieve partly by starting big steel works under German management, to make machines which would enable Cantonese mills to provide all China's wants; and if some imports were still required the dredgers would deepen the waterways enough to bring the ships up the river. The Railway would be kept in isolation by refusing to make a loop to the Hankow line. Even the wireless telephone would be at Canton. The Open Door could be gradually closed under pressure from the North by the gradual increase of privileges of one sort or another to Japanese goods under a pledge of protection by the Japanese Fleet and assistance in suppressing Bandits and Communists. And so on.

It is a good maxim not to run to meet trouble; but it is also a good plan to look round every now and then to make sure that we are not missing opportunities. Are our relations with Canton free from misunderstandings? Is not the purely official and correct attitude, which is based on the recognition of Nanking as the Head of a unified State, liable to be interpreted as frigid aloofness? The subject is obviously a delicate one, on which the non-official observer has no means of accurate knowledge; but it is a question that has a long history. When Hong Kong was first organised into a Crown Colony with a responsible Governor, the scheme was that the Governor of Hong Kong should also be the British adviser and representative in all dealings with China. The increase of trade with the North, the growth of Shanghai, and the general growth of intercourse which trade brought with it made that arrangement unsatisfactory, and the establishment of an Embassy was essential. Whether it is to-day convenient that that Embassy should be retained at Peking is hotly debated; in any case it does not seem to have occurred to anybody to consult Hong Kong about it. After the stirring events of 1925 our relations with Canton were for a time as bad as could be; and from the Hong Kong point of view Sir Cecil Clementi did a good stroke of business when he improved them, after a visit to Canton for the purpose of having a full and candid discussion of outstanding questions. The drawback to this direct method of negotiation was that it gave grievous offence to Sir Miles Lampson, who considered that Sir Cecil had been trespassing on his preserves, and that his incursion had made his own task more difficult.

It is often argued that the interests of British citizens in China are so extensive that there need be no fear of British influence being displaced. A new technique of financial diplomacy has to be developed, without the strong weapon of an ultimatum in the background, for effective use combination is absolutely necessary. The Empire as a unit is the smallest bargaining unit that is likely to be of any use at all; and there is not the slightest reason to suppose that it would be impossible to get the co-operation of the eight signatories of the "Nine Power Treaty" against any discriminatory treatment in tariffs or such a matter as international regulation of Airways.

What those Powers want is in the real interests of Chinese independence; there is no probability, and there would be no sense in any attempt to limit the industrial development of China; and there is no question that the prosperity of China would mean the prosperity of Hong Kong. But does this point of view get "put over" to the people of the Southern Provinces? Do we pay as much attention to Chinese Exports as to Chinese Imports? If it is the fact that our trade interests are identical, why not try to remove suspicions?

The PASSING HOUR by A. N. M.

WHAT with "Prying Polices" and all the other alliterative limbs of the law, Motorists may well think they have already enough mortification to deal with, but a new trouble has been provided for them by a decision just given in the Court of King's Bench in London. It is just as well to take note of it, for it cannot be very long before our own Police and Practitioners hear of it. Those who have ever had the doubtful pleasure of reading up the Common Law are aware that there is no writ available for the indignant father for Seduction; but damages are claimed and awarded for the "loss of services" of an erring daughter even though the erring one may have been nothing but an expense. The suit for loss of services rests on the feudal system of status rather than on any proven dereliction of duty owed by the daughter; and it has till now been recognised as the sole survival of the older law which came into existence when our agriculture was based on the work of serfs for a feudal lord of the manor.

About four months ago two R.A.F. flying men on the way to their drome were injured in a motor accident, and the prosecution of the driver of the offending car made it clear that he was to blame. The Court dealt with the case in the usual way, and there it would have ended had England not been blessed (or otherwise) with an Attorney General of unusual ingenuity. Acting on the old Common Law doctrine which had never been abolished by Statute, the Attorney General, on behalf of the Government, laid an "Information" before Mr. Justice Mackinnon for loss of services due to the Air Force. So ancient was the procedure that the Information was laid in Latin, on the very odd ground that it looked "less oppressive" than in English. The learned Judge not only awarded three hundred and twenty-six pounds (£326) damages, but expressly explained that Government had no special privilege in the matter, and the writ would be available to any other employer. So if the Manager of a Store should suffer inconvenience through loss of services of his shrew caused by his being knocked down by a car while on his rounds, he can add his claim to the penalties prescribed by law. Whether the Defendant will feel "less oppressed" if he has to pay "nummos trecentos" rather than three hundred dollars remains doubtful; but no doubt his Bank Manager will be able to quote the daily rate of exchange.

EXIT HAMLET

THE members of the Hong Kong University Dramatic Society have to deplore the departure last week of their Hamlet, who bade Hong Kong goodbye in more "modern dress" than he wore on the stage. Mr. Reginald Woolley is one of the most versatile products of our local education, and is off to London, and possibly to Paris, to get a more systematic training for

EXTENDING FLYING FACILITIES

NEED TO CATER FOR GROWING TRAFFIC

BOLD AND COMPREHENSIVE MOVE AT HESTON

(By William Courtenay)

IT is not enough in 1935 for a town to possess an aerodrome or even the dignity of an airport (conferred by special dispensation of H.M. Customs and Excise).

The 1935 aerodrome or airport must cater for growing kinds of air traffic. One is the coming of the bigger and faster air liner which requires more space for the take-off and landing. Another is the provision of night flying facilities.

In the vanguard of the movement to bring the airport up to date is Heston.

Nigel Norman, Alan Muntz and Reginald Denman, the three wise men who founded this aerodrome a few years ago, have drawn up plans to cope with the two new factors which modern air transport requires.

The whole landing area has been enlarged.

Last year a new hangar was added to cope with increasing traffic.

Another bold move at Heston was the scrapping of the whole fleet of instructional machines for the Flying School run by Air-work. New type Avro Cadets were installed, and the long list of distinguished pupils who go to Heston for training amply proves the wisdom of this move.

Wireless Information
Heston was not content to see Croydon possess a monopoly of wireless facilities. A wireless tower was run up, and pilots for a long time have been able to get all the meteorological information they want there and to call up Heston for information or to check bearings.

Heston is also more fog-free than Croydon and could be used when Croydon is fog-bound. As at Croydon, there is now a white line in the direction of the prevailing wind, and pilots of air liners can take off in fog by keeping a look-out along this line.

Everything Bigger
The newest developments for the 1935 programme embrace building extensions, land extensions, and the provision of night landing equipment.

The most important of the new buildings will be a workshop and hangar having a 200ft. entrance.

This year Jersey Airways, who operate a large fleet of air liners, will have bigger ones for their Heston-Jersey service.

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Danish Crown Prince arrived at Nanking on board the Florida, and was met by Dr. C. T. Wang and Mayor Liu Chi-wen.

The Nepalese invasion into Tibet appears to be daily growing serious and threatening Sikong, on the border of Szechuen.

"HERALD" CALENDAR

March 18, 1829—Edict of Commissioner Li to surrender all opium in Canton.
March 19, 1848—Sir G. Bonham, Governor, landed in Hong Kong.
March 19, 1922—General strike at Macao; police station besieged by Chinese mobs.
March 21, 1834—British ship "Sarnah," first free trader, sailed from Whampoa.
March 21, 1849—Sir George Bonham became Governor of Hong Kong.

The Portsmouth and Isle of Wight air route will have more machines.

The British Air Navigation Co., who control practically all the luxury air traffic to Le Touquet and other Continental resorts, buy bigger and more luxurious air liners each year as soon as they are available.

These will all need more hangarage. There will be 54,000 sq. ft. of floor space in the new hangar.

The Flying School
One day Heston may have to move its well-known flying school altogether. I am not at all sure that at a busy commercial airport flying training ought to be carried on at all.

Meanwhile, the school is to be moved to a new building.

Heston has had night flying equipment to some extent for some time. A shadow-bar floodlight of 985,000 candle-power can be seen for miles round London.

Rebuilds after Illness

OVALTINE is unrivalled as a food for convalescents, because it supplies concentrated nourishment in an easily digested form. It quickly establishes that progressive improvement which the patient longs to feel and the nurse desires to observe.

Ovaltine has a delicious flavour which pleases even the most fastidious palate, and its fragrant aroma arouses even the most fickle appetite. Made from ripe barley malt, rich creamy milk, fresh eggs and cocoa, one cup of Ovaltine contains more nourishment than 12 cups of beef tea or 3 eggs.

Ovaltine contains in correct ratio all the essential vitamins, and also all the other equally important factors of a complete and perfect food.

Tai Yue Shan

LAN TAU island possesses two separate chains of mountains each with two peaks over 2,500 feet. The two chains together form a U but a dip separates one half from the other, the height of this pass is only a little over 1,000 feet. To the west of the western chain an extension of the ridge converts the half U into a Y. The two highest peaks are situated at the base of the U one on either side of the dip, that on the west is Lan tau peak that on the east is Tai Yue Shan. Lan tau means Broken head mountain, so named because of the cleft in the summit of the mountain resulting in the appearance of twin peaks; Tai Yue Shan means Big rain mountain. Lan tau peak can be ascended from Tung Chung to the north, Tai O to the west or Shui Hau to the south; Tai Yue Shan from Tung Chung to the north-west, Silver Mine Bay to the east or Pui O to the south-east of the peak. The better mountain for flowers is undoubtedly Lan tau peak 3,066 feet; Tai Yue Shan is 2,823 feet.

Thanks to the great kindness of two friends we were enabled first to sail across from Hong Kong to Cheung Chau Island, secondly to stay the night of Saturday 9th March on that island, thirdly to sail to Silver Mine Bay on the morning of the Sunday and finally to sail back to Hong Kong on the evening of that day.

Silver Mine Bay is itself an interesting place; it possesses a large sandy beach which is excellent for shells, behind this beach is a sand dune on which almost all the plants, which grow in such a locality in this Colony, can be found and on the west are several wooded villages in which many species of birds may be seen.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE FUNCTIONS

Many Social Activities During Week

Commander T. A. Hussey, R.N., and Mr. K. A. Munro dined with Lady Peel at Government House.

Wednesday, March 13:—

His Excellency and Lady Peel, attended by Captain Walter, paid an informal visit to the Women's International Club in the morning.

In the afternoon His Excellency and Lady Peel, accompanied by their guests and attended by Mr. Pilcher, were the guests of the Hon. Sir Shouson Chow at tea.

Thursday, March 14:—

His Excellency presided at meetings of the Executive Council in the morning and the Legislative Council in the afternoon.

Mr. H. Phillips, C.M.G., O.B.E., and Mr. A. P. Blunt, C.M.G., dined at Government House.

Friday, March 15th:—

His Excellency the Governor and

There are several possible ascents of the mountain from the bay, the one we followed, the easiest, commences up the path which proceeds to the village of Pui O. To the west of the bay are five wooded villages, the southern most of these with the largest wood is Lung Ti Tong; the path skirts the southern boundary of this wood. This path is followed to the top of the pass when it is deserted and, instead of descending in a south westerly direction to Pui O, an ascent of a steep shoulder is made roughly in a north westerly direction. This path later turns west in the direction of Tai Yue Shan and there is no possibility of missing the way. There is a small peak, roughly 2,600 to the east of the main peak and between this and Tai Yue Shan are a number of bungalows erected by enterprising missionaries to serve as holiday quarters in the summer months.

The advance party made the ascent to this small peak in 1 1/4 hours and then, prior to a colossal tiffin provided by our kind hosts, the biologist of the party went off hunting. Last time he had visited this spot in a previous March a ground orchid only previously reported from Japan had been discovered but a careful search on this occasion revealed no more specimens. Osmunda regalis the Royal fern of England and O. javanica were both found, also filmy ferns, an interesting club moss (Lycopodium) a Thalictrum not in flower and many mosses. Representatives of all these genera can be found in England which shows that the mountain flora of the tropics has something in common with that of temperate countries. Pholidota cantoniensis a rare orchid not listed in the Hong Kong Flora was also seen on one rock. The Large White-rumped Swift was present in numbers in the air above the peak and a number of Tree plovers on the ground but no other birds were on the mountain itself. In the valley the most interesting birds noticed were a Dusky Shrike and a Crested Bunting.

The descent was made down a steep shoulder which brought us to the cultivated fields between the villages of Tai Ti Tong and Lung Ti Tong. The most exciting incident of the trip occurred on the homeward voyage when the writer's hat was blown into the sea. The hat had been purchased to replace its predecessor left inadvertently on an eagle's eyrie, this one was not deserted but rescued, amidst much excitement, and returned to its own Lan tau.

The Rev. John Kirk Macdonachie, formerly of the Union Church, Kennedy Road, who died at the Manor, No. 7 Barton Crescent, Dawlish, Devon, England, on March 2, 1934, left local estate worth under $56,600.

On the application of Mr. D. J. Lewis, solicitor for Katherine Hocking Macdonachie, widow of the deceased, sealing of Probate of the Will was granted.

Mr. Alfred Brearley has been appointed a Trustee of the Church of England in Hong Kong, vice Mr. Phillip Jacks, as representing St. John's Cathedral.

Lady Peel, attended by Captain Walter, made a visit of inspection to the Chan Yuk Hospital, the Bacteriological Institute and the Infant Welfare Centre in Wanchai.

His Excellency presided at a meeting of the University Council in the afternoon and Lady Peel presided at a meeting of the Cheero Club Committee at Government House.

Miss Raphael and Miss Tufton left Government House.

In the evening His Excellency and Lady Peel, accompanied by Miss Readhead and attended by Captain Walter, were the guests of the President and Members of the St. Patrick's Society at their annual ball at the Peninsula Hotel.

CHARITY BALL AT HOTEL CECIL

Under Patronage Of H.E. The Governor

IN AID OF THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL AND CLINIC

A charity ball will be held in aid of the Children's Hospital and Clinic, Kowloon, under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., and the Honorary presidency of Sir Shou-son Chow, Kt., LL.D., at the Hotel Cecil on Saturday, March 30, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Children's Hospital and Clinic being allocated in a section temporarily at the Precious Blood Convent, has been rendering valuable medical aid and care for the poor children among the ignorant working class.

Its work is benefiting the community in general; any ailment and any misfortune befalling any one cannot but in some ways inflict injury on all those who are in contact with the sufferer. Consequently, the medical relief and instructions given by the hospital and clinic, with the help of its honorary doctors and the support of the H.K. Society for the Protection of Children, mean not only the alleviation of the suffering of the young ones, but also the prevention of their infectious diseases from spreading all over the city. It is, therefore, only natural that this institution should expect generous support from the community.

It is hoped that this function, at the moderate charge of $3.50 per head for dinner and dance, will result in a big success. Arrangements have been made as it is learned, with the management of the Hotel Cecil to provide an excellent menu at cost price, as it is for a charity, while Mr. Tse Yung Kwong has donated a sum of $100 to pay half the cost of the orchestra. Tickets are obtainable at the Hotel Cecil.

NEW TERRITORIES AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION

BIG PROGRESS IS REPORTED

AMOY CANNING COMPANY SHOWS CO-OPERATION

In spite of difficulties caused by the fact that it has no headquarters, or even an office, on either the mainland or in the city, the New Territories Agricultural Association is reported to be making big progress, and the financial position of the Association is now declared to be very much stronger.

During the course of an interview with the Sunday Herald, Mr. C. Tetzel, the Hon. Secretary of the Association, said that the amount of subscriptions already collected is expected to swell their resources to over $2,000 by the end of this month, and added that the Government had promised a grant of $2,000 every year if the Association was able to raise at least the same amount in annual subscriptions.

Petition To Government

At the next meeting, on March 23, a petition to the Government in regard to space on the mainland for farmers to sell New Territories products once a week, will be discussed. This scheme will be similar to the Chinese Market Day in the interior—all the farmers from surrounding villages meet on a certain day, and bring the goods they have for sale. The idea was suggested by the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga at the last meeting.

Sally Fuxman, winner of the tap dance contest sponsored in connection with the filming of "Bright Eyes," the Shirley Temple hit.

HONG KONG'S "SHIRLEY"

Sally Fuxman Gains Narrow Win

Miss Sally Fuxman, with 61 votes, was elected winner of the "Shirley Temple" Tap Dancing contest held by the King's Theatre in conjunction with the Fox Film "Bright Eyes."

Before a crowded house at the early afternoon performance yesterday, Mrs. Digby, wife of Professor Dr. K. H. Digby, of the Hong Kong University, presented the silver cup, donated by the King's Theatre management, to the proud winner.

The contest was held on the afternoon of February 27, during the very successful dancing display given by the pupils of the O'Keefe Montgomery Dancing School at the King's Theatre, and the audience voted on the merits of the competitors.

Other contestants were Jimmy Ramsay (7), Billy Tse (55), Phyllis Castro, (3), June Trowl (19), and Benny Ching (10).

FIRST SUPPLEMENT OF "CHINA MAIL"

Home Matters From Every Angle

AN APPRECIATION

In accordance with the promise made in its Ninetieth Anniversary number, the China Mail yesterday issued the first of its new weekly features, beginning with the most important of subjects to the world in general—the home.

It is an excellently-produced little issue in all respects, being well printed, on good paper, and charmingly illustrated by that clever artist Mr. A. S. Konya. It contains articles by Miss Phyllis Juby, another Sunday Herald contributor, on all things dear to the heart of women—with hints on such matters as health exercises, make-up (shades of our Victorian grandmothers!) and, last but not least, the nursery, though this last, in the present issue, is but a promise of more and better things to come.

Mr. Konya's article on the modern bedroom, illustrated with his own beautiful design, gives both pleasure and food for thought and should prove of interest to architects as well as to occupants of the houses they plan.

Congratulations to the China Mail—F.H.

cucumbers produced in the New Territories. This Company has always bought their supply of cucumbers from Canton, at least 15,000 cabbages every year. The New Territories at present produce only a small supply, but the Amoy Canning Company will buy whatever amount they are able to produce and will purchase the balance from Canton.

First Headquarters

According to Mr. Tetzel, there is such a vast overproduction of tomatoes in the New Territories that the farmers cannot find consumers to purchase large supplies. Mr. Tetzel said that the Association have not yet received information regarding the 200,000 square feet of land at Fanling, which, it was reported, the Government had granted to the Association.

The farmers who occupied this land were given six months' notice last October. The Association Headquarters will be erected on this plot of land.

QUIET WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL

BARLOW—TRAHAIR

HONEYMOON TO BE SPENT AT FANLING

A quiet wedding took place at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon when Mr. Arthur Laurence Barlow and Miss Irene Hazlewood Trahair, were married before the Rev. H. W. Balnes.

Mr. Barlow, who is an engineer with the Eastern Extension, Australasia & China Telegraph Company, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Barlow of Derby, England, and his bride, who was formerly secretary to Dr. Montgomery, of the Matilda Hospital, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Trahair, of Saltash, Cornwall.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Reginald Rogers. Mr. F. Mason played appropriate music.

A reception was held at Gloucester Building, and the happy couple then left for their honeymoon, which is being spent at Fanling.

ARMS WITHOUT PERMIT

Explanation By Chicago Miner Not Accepted

$500 FINE IMPOSED

A fine of $500, in default six months' imprisonment, was imposed on William Exler, the Chicago miner who was remanded last Wednesday for having in his possession, at the Trocadero Hotel, Kowloon, on March 12, one Colt, a .45 automatic pistol, 16 rounds of .32 ammunition, and 23 rounds of .32 ammunition, by Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court.

The defendant pleaded guilty to the charge, but asked if he might explain. He stated that he had come here from New Guinea and brought all his belongings with him, which included his pistol. When he arrived on the ship he expected the customs to search his baggage and advise him. But at no time was he asked about having any arms in his possession.

The gun had been in his bag at the Hotel ever since he arrived in the Colony, and he was about to leave the Hotel when the Police arrived.

He added that he had had the gun since the war.

Police Version

Detective-Sub-Inspector Whant, of the Water Police Station, stated that the defendant arrived in the Colony on the s.s. Bromerhaven, on February 27. The ship was met by police searchers and the defendant was interviewed, giving him the opportunity to declare his arms.

He added that notices were distributed to all the shipping firms regarding the arms ordinance, to be posted on the ships.

The defendant had another chance of declaring the arms when interviewed at Police Headquarters.

When he raided the defendant's room, which was Room No. 4 at the Trocadero Hotel, S. I. Whant found that the defendant was not there, but he returned shortly afterwards and claimed the suitcase in which the pistol had been found.

In imposing the fine Mr. Grantham stated that in Hong Kong a very serious view was taken of the unlawful possession of arms.

A bankruptcy notification states that a first dividend of 10 per cent. has been declared in the case of Tommy James Row, clerk, of 53 Johnston Road.

St. Patrick's Day To-day

It is 1546 years ago to-day since St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, was born.

Authorities differ as to his birthplace, but it is generally believed to have been Downpatrick. He was educated to be a Christian and was deeply imbued with a reverence for the Roman Empire.

Patrick led an adventurous life and at the age of 16 was carried off by a band of Irish marauders, remaining for six years in captivity in the neighbourhood of Croagh Patrick in Connaught.

It was while he was there that he first became subject to religious emotions and is stated to have had a vision which finally enabled him to escape.

The Seven Words On Calvary

Thought For Others, Not For Himself

Message Of Eternal Hope For Humanity

(By Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

WHEN, several weeks ago, I handed in the Message of my articles on the series which finished last week, I thought that they would be the last ones which I should write for this paper.

The Editor, however, asked me if I was willing to carry on, and I have agreed to do so, even though future articles will have to be sent out from home, and be subject to the whims of the Mail.

It has been a great privilege and a pleasure as well as a great responsibility to have had the task of writing these articles week by week for over two years, and I have only been held to it by the fact that many people have let me know that my words have met some need in their lives and helped them, at least to some extent.

Five Sundays intervene between now and Easter Day, and I propose therefore to use these Sundays in Lent, by taking the Seven Words of the Cross, as the subject of this and following articles.

Treasured Words

They are Words that Christendom has always treasured, not only because Christ spoke them, but because we always hold in affectionate remembrance the last messages of those whom we love. The most cruel feature of crucifixion was the slowness of death, but Calvary had at least this compensation, that it permitted Christ to speak those sentences, which have always been gratefully remembered by the Christian Church.

The Cross on which He died was not the imposing structure sometimes presented by Christian art. It was much too common for that. It probably consisted of a strong post set in the ground beforehand, upon which a stout beam was fixed cross-wise; and the feet of the sufferer would only be raised a little from the earth. The victim did not look down upon his persecutors, he literally agonised in their midst.

In death, as in life, His first thought was not for Himself, but for others; not for His friends, but for those who had wounded Him to His sufferings. Emerson once said that prayer was a disease of the will, but here it was a triumph of will. His only thought was that the awfulness of the deed which these men were doing might for ever seal the heart of God against them. So He pleads: "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." And no other utterance of His throughout His life better illustrates Rousseau's famous saying: "If the life and death of Socrates are those of a sage, the life and death of Christ are those of a God."

Meeting Death

There are three ways in which to meet death. One may pass delirious, even blaspheming, like one of the thieves upon the Cross. Or one may die callous and steeled against the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune." Or one may go triumphant, with a trumpet to his lips, knowing that death is but the passing through a door into life that goes on just where we left it, only fuller and more glorious.

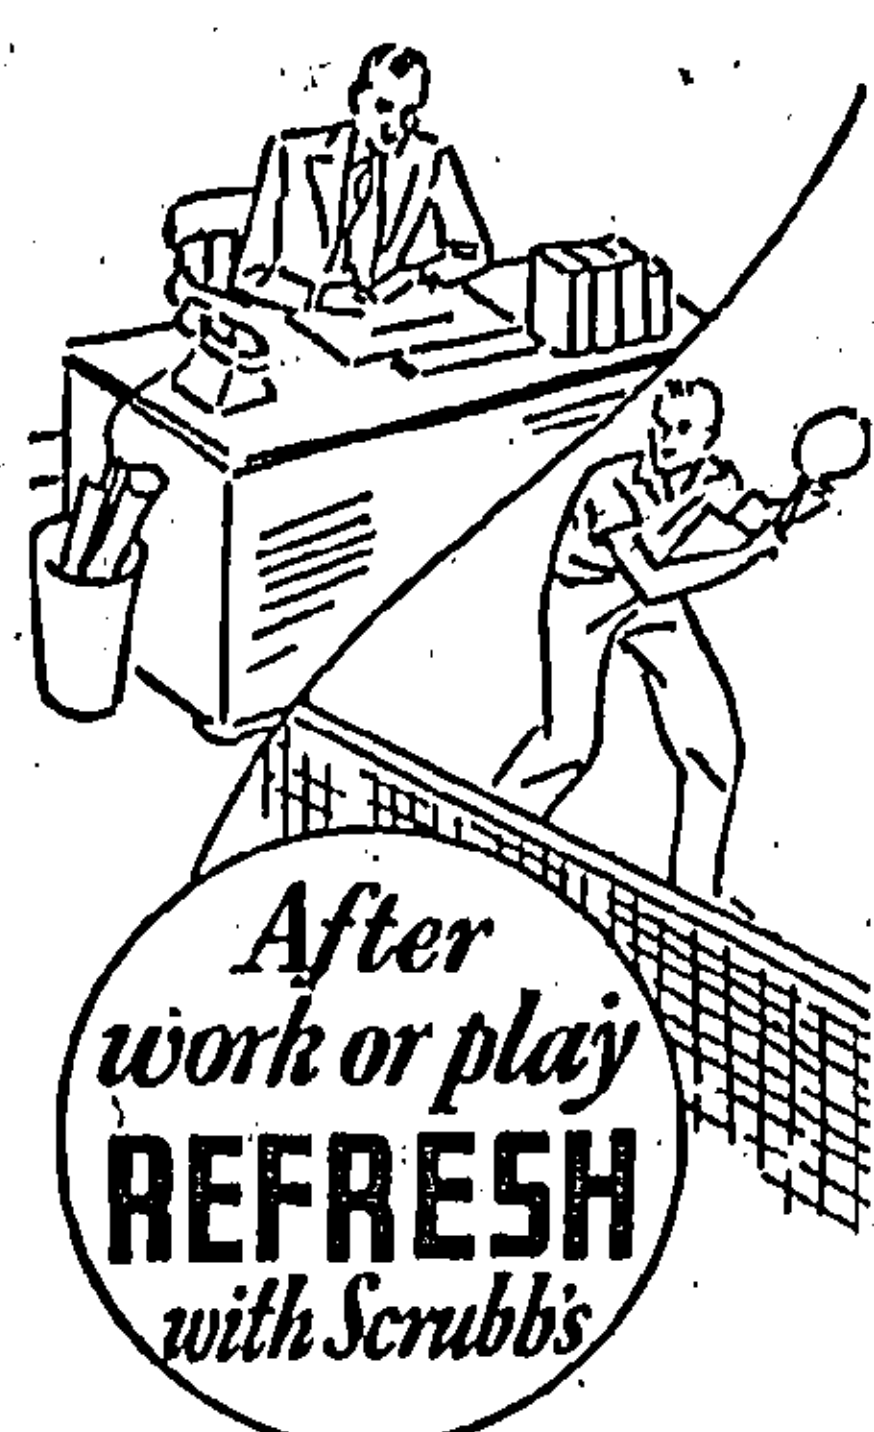

Christ had suffered trial and

Some of the worst sins are entered upon with complete ignorance of their magnitude. Drunkenness is sometimes little less than a disease, of which men are practically victims. In general people do not have as diabolical enemies of God. They are more like sheep who have gone astray. They just do not know what they are doing. Only if they persist in defying Him, when they know Him as He really is, will they condemn themselves to the hell which their own doings have made for them.

For the love of God is broader than the measures of man's mind, and the heart of the Eternal is most wonderfully kind. The multitude that will gather on the hills of Gods will not be all on the same stage of spiritual development; but, thank God, there are many mansions. For all men, whether white or black or yellow or red, are all climbing up the rugged path.

BANISHEE CAOLED

Sentence of nine months' hard labour was yesterday imposed on Tam Sun, a banishee, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy for returning to the Colony from banishment. Accused was banished last year for a period of five years.

LAST WEEK'S SOLUTION

COMING ORATORIO AT CATHEDRAL

Hong Kong Singers In "Elijah"

IMPRESSIONS OF REHEARSAL

As I happened to be passing through the grounds of St. John's Cathedral on Thursday last, I was attracted by the sound of beautiful singing and, entering the Cathedral, I discovered that a rehearsal of the Hong Kong Singers was in progress for the forthcoming performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" which is to be given on Thursday week at 9 p.m. The acoustic properties of the building naturally lent a peculiar charm to the voices, causing them to blend in an ethereal way, but I do not remember hearing better singing in the Colony for many a long day. It conjured up happy memories of those times when I, too, used to sing in a similar setting at home, and I know the great delight it can give to both singers and audience.

Beautiful Singing

This was no commonplace oratorio singing! Never did the music become monotonous, for Mr. Anderson Miller is insistent in his demand for variety of tone; now as soft as a whisper, and then swelling out "in perfect diapason" with Mr. Frederick Mason's skillful accompaniment as a sympathetic background. I liked the full-toned chorales, the sudden bursts of angry malediction where the Prophet is accused of troubling Israel's peace, and the reposeful settings of "He that shall endure to the end" and "He watching over Israel."

"I consider the Rev. H. W. Baines, as Elijah, a most happy choice. His full resonant voice was heard to perfection from the back of the church, where I was seated. Rehearsals of solos, trios, and quartets followed, and I was particularly struck with the careful blending of the voices in the quartet, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord."

Large Audience Expected

I hear that there is to be one performance only, which is unfortunate, as there will doubtless be a great demand for seats, and space is limited. It is expected that the Cathedral will be filled to overflowing. Programmes will shortly be available and will guarantee their holders a seat.

As the proceeds of the service will be devoted exclusively to the funds of the Hong Kong Benevolent Society, all those who take a programme will understand that they have an obligation to contribute in generous measure to this most deserving cause. An opportunity for this will be afforded at the end of the performance.—M. B.

BALANCE OF POWER HAS PROVED A FAILURE

CONSULTATIVE SYSTEM MUST REPLACE IT—SIR J. SIMON

London, Yesterday.

Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, speaking at Swansea last night said that the defects of the pre-war system of balance of power were burnt into their memories by the events of August, 1914.

There was nothing in that system, he said, to put in the way of the first beginnings of the avalanche. Statesmen had learnt from bitter experience that after the great war there was no such thing as victory and that everybody was the loser.

They had set themselves to create a world organisation for the express purpose of maintaining and promoting peace and the substitution of a system of consultation for a balance of power. That tremendous conception had in fact produced great results, even though it had not always succeeded.

CHINESE Y.M.C.A. DISPLAY

Women's Basketball Open League

LADY SOUTHERN PRESENTS THE PRIZES

"I am very delighted to see the healthy girls of China to-day playing basketball," declared Lady Southern, O.B.E., when presenting the prizes to the champion team of the Women's Open Basketball League at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. Open House Display yesterday, which was continued from noon to 9 p.m.

Winning the trophy two years in succession for the Mui Fong Girls' College, each individual player of the victorious team received a picture, handsomely framed, of herself. These were the Misses Lo Yuet-ho, Chan Chai-chun, Wong King-chun, Chan Fong-kun, Ip Mei-ching, Ip Mei-lan, Lam Hing-yuk, Chu Chun-chun, Lam Shu-ping and Tam Chung-yau.

During the day hundreds of visitors inspected the Association buildings. Among those noticed at the function, besides Lady Southern, were Mr. J. L. MacPherson, M.B.E., the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotelawala and Mrs. Kotelawala, Miss Elsie Kwok, Mrs. Chan Tit-yat, principal of the Mui Fong Girls' College, Mr. Au Wai-kuo, President of the Chinese Y.M.C.A., Mr. Ko Sik-wai, and Mr. William C. Chan.

Open To Public

The buildings, including the members' and students' hostel, were thrown open to the public during the day. Interesting exhibitions of posters and work by the students were on view.

During the day several exhibition basketball matches were played, while in the evening, an entertaining programme consisting of short skits and music was provided at 7.30 in the auditorium. In a tent in the open-air basketball court free vaccinations were given by members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, Medical Section, and nearby was a scene depicting scouts' camp life and activities.

The results of the basketball matches were as follows:—Mui Fong Girls' 19, Combined Team 10. Y.M.C.A. 28, Police.

Lai Heung 55, Chung Nam (Yellow) 80, Chung Nam (Red) 88, S.C.A.A. "A" 31.

Mui Fong Girls Win

At 4.30 p.m. a packed house at the gymnasium saw the Mui Fong Girls, the basketball champions, defeat a combined team by 19 goals to 10.

During the interval Lady Southern distributed the prizes. Mr. Au Wai-kuo presiding.

In a short and appropriate speech, Lady Southern said that she was very glad to be able to be present to see a basketball game and to distribute the prizes. It was a pleasure to see Chinese girls to-day healthy and participating in sports. Lady Southern congratulated the Mui Fong Girls on their interest in social services in the Colony and paid a warm tribute to the principal of the school for her high standard of organisation.

Bouquet For Lady Southern

Lady Southern then addressed Mr. J. L. MacPherson, the Advisory Secretary of the Chinese Y.M.C.A., saying that, as the result of his pending departure, the Colony was losing one of her most valuable servants; also that she wished him happiness in his retirement.

Lady Southern was then presented with a beautiful bouquet of mix-

Referring to the disarmament problem Sir John Simon said there was no doubt that what had been contemplated was that Germany's enforced disarmament would be followed by agreed reductions in the armaments of other states. Britain indeed had reduced her armaments and had now reached the stage beyond which she would not proceed further with such unilateral measure.

Of late, he said, there had been not disarmament, but increases of armaments on the part of Japan, Russia, United States and other nations. And among countries that were rearming was Germany. "What," asked the Foreign Secretary, "is the cause of this rearmament in so many countries?" The only disarmament that will last is disarmament that is freely agreed upon, and in order to bring about an agreement about armaments it is absolutely necessary to increase the sense of security.

FORTHCOMING VISITS
The Lord Privy Seal, Mr. Anthony Eden, and I are, in a few days, setting out upon visit to Berlin, Moscow, and Warsaw in efforts to promote a better understanding between the European nations and in the hope of contributing towards the settlement of those outstanding problems which at present impair international confidence.

"I am under no illusion as to the difficulties of our task, but any measure of success would be not only a contribution to the appeasement of Europe, but would be the opening up of renewed possibilities for that arms agreement for which we have so long striven. That in its turn will strengthen the League of Nations and the collective peace system.

SIGNIFICANCE
"The visit I shall be paying to Berlin, upon which the Lord Privy Seal will accompany me, is of course quite independent in origin from that which my colleague will pay subsequently to Russia and Poland.

"Let me make it clear, however, that His Majesty's Government attaches no less significance to the latter visit than to the former. They regard each visit as of exceptional importance and welcome most sincerely the opportunity which will thus be afforded in three great capitals of the hope to promote that international understanding which is the Government's chief concern."—British Wireless Service.

A grand variety entertainment is advertised to be held at the China Fleet Club Theatre by the H.M.S. Suffolk "Non-Stops," by kind permission of Captain E. Manners, R.N., to-morrow at 8.30 p.m. and on Wednesday, at 9 p.m. The proceeds will go the Cheero Club.

ed flowers by Miss Ip Mei-lin, of the Mui Fong Girls' College.

Mr. Au Wai-kuo thanked Lady Southern on behalf of the Directors, staff, and members of the Association for her presence, and wished her a pleasant journey home, as he understood that she would be leaving on furlough at the end of this year.

Miss Lo Yuet-ho, Captain of the Mui Fong Girls' basketball team, gave a review of the progress of the Women's Open Basketball League, which had increased in number of entrants by one this year. Securing 24 points, the Mui Fong Girls had led the South China Athletic Association, by four points to win the championship, while St. Paul's Girls' College won third place with 10 points.

During the day the swimming pool in the Association was officially declared open for the season.

CHINESE PAINTER KILLED

A Chinese ship's painter was instantaneously killed on Friday afternoon when he slipped from his perch while painting the hull of the s.s. Kwong Chung at the Kowloon Dock and fell 20 feet to the bottom of the dry-dock.

The following list of unclaimed radio telegrams are lying at the Government Radio Office: Hoan from Cholon; Burgess Thomas Cook c/o Cook and Sons from New York; and Gregg Stephens from Hankow.

BIGGEST IN HISTORY

1,219 ARRESTED AND $1,000,000 IN DRUGS SEIZED

SIX WOMEN CAUGHT IN WASHINGTON

Government Drive

New York, Yesterday.

The biggest round-up of illegal traders in liquor and narcotics in the history of the United States occurred yesterday when 1,219 persons were arrested, of whom 741 will be charged with the illicit manufacture of liquor, 247 with peddling narcotics, and 26 with counterfeiting.

Six women were arrested in Washington on charges of dealing in narcotics.

The arrested persons include whites, negroes and Chinese.

Altogether $1,000,000 worth of drugs have been seized.—Reuter.

WOMAN'S PART IN ANGLO-CHINESE RELATIONSHIPS

Colony Trade Fair Seeks Co-operation

MR. LEWIS IN CHARGE

In these days it is frankly admitted by all thinking people that the foundation of the world's progress, the whole development of modern civilization, lies in the reciprocity of trade. In the buying and selling of what is produced, the primal activities of all nations are absorbed. In the hands of the men who deal with market and their output, with the distribution and adjustment of goods, with prices and payments, lies the welfare in greater part, or less, degree of each individual human being.

But to women is left a greater responsibility—still, that of the spiritual side of world reconstruction. The international women's conferences—Pan Pacific, Y.W.C.A., Constantinople—are examples of what women are doing in the interests of the better understanding of the peoples of the earth; in the weaving of a background of friendship against which the more technical operations of diplomats, business and professional men may the more easily be seen and understood.

Co-operation Recognized

Opportunities are not wanting for the exercise of the qualities peculiarly pertaining to women international matters, and more and more the immense importance of their splendid co-operation is being recognized. The strength of international friendship might very well depend on the quality of women's personal participation in that side of world adjustments.

The women of China are very wide awake. It is safe to say that their emancipation, swift though it has been, is in many ways more complete than that of their Western sisters. But the East and West, though coming inevitably closer together through modern facilities in transport and news service, are still too far apart on the plane of friendship for any real understanding to have yet been reached.

Trade Fairs Aim

For this reason the organisers of the British Empire and China Trade Fair which is being held in Hong Kong in December next are doing all in their power to rouse the interest and co-operation of women from all parts of the Empire in its aims and objects. The issue being so serious, this appeal to the women of the British Empire and of China, to do their part in assuring its success, seems amply justified. Suggestions in connection with such a move having met with decided encouragement in New Zealand and Australia, it is hoped to arrange a conference at which friendly discussions may take place, and at which women delegates from overseas may meet and talk with those of China in the friendly atmosphere of social gatherings. The future importance

ROYALTY ESCAPES ASSASSINATION ATTEMPTED

KING OF HEJAZ AND CROWN PRINCE

London, yesterday.

King Ibn Saud of the Hejaz and the Crown Prince, Emir Saud, yesterday narrowly escaped death by assassination during the early morning devotions in the great mosque of El Haram, according to a communique issued by the Hejaz Legation in London.

It is stated that Zeid from the Yemen, armed with daggers, attacked the King and Crown Prince but were shot down by the bodyguards.—Reuter.

I have often landed my light aeroplane at Heston on the long summer evenings last year just as dusk was falling.

Heston's famous tall gasometer on one side proves a sure guide on such occasions, and the powerful crimson floodlight beckons the airman home.

Night Flying

When I fly in the dusk again this summer I shall be comforted by the knowledge that there will be more night flying facilities.

Two additional floodlights, each of 1½ million candle-power, are to be erected on the aerodrome boundaries.

The three floodlights will be operated from the control tower. The pilot will find his landing track floodlit without himself being dazzled by the powerful lights.

A new system of boundary lights will be installed this month. Each light will have two lamps. The top one will be amber-coloured and the lower one will be white.

Joy-Rides

At Essex airport, Abridge, I noticed that Hillman's Airways still keep alive that form of "joy-riding" which was the beginning of air travel.

Every week-end there are hundreds of visitors who like to watch air liners coming and going on their many occasions. I must confess that I myself never cease to be thrilled by such a sight.

A cheap "joy-ride" over London gives the people their first taste of an air journey. From this the ranks of the air travellers are swelled.

TRESPASSER ON RAILWAY LINE

Foolhardy Act Leads To $28 Fine

A very unusual case was brought before Mr. A. W. G. H.
Grantham at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning when Lal Wing, a 20-year-old travelling tinder, appeared on charges of trespassing on the Kowloon Canton Railway line near No. 3
Bridge, King's Park, and for doing a rash and negligent act likely to endanger his own life or the life of anyone travelling on the train, when he attempted to pass a bundle of artificial silk to another man on the 4.50 p.m. Canton express on Thursday.

Defendant pleaded guilty to both charges.
Inspector Whelan, of the Hong Kong Police Station, stated that the defendant was seen by a constable on the railway track near the No. 3 Bridge; when the express was passing he held up a bundle of Japanese artificial silk and tried to pass it to one of the passengers, but missed, and fell to the ground.

Fines totalling $28, in default one month's imprisonment, were imposed.

DOG-SNATCHER GAOLED

Pleading guilty to charges brought against him for stealing and having possession of three Alsatian dogs, Wong Sik, the 30-year-old unemployed, who was remanded last Saturday, was sentenced to terms totalling six months' imprisonment by Mr. A. W. G. H.
Grantham at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning.

ORDNANCE BEING AMENDED

PEAK TRAM FLATS

The Government Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the Peak Tramway Ordinance 1883.
It is explained that Section 12
(1) of the principal Ordinance, No.
2 of 1883, enables the Government in certain events to purchase all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant of the Peak Tramways Company Limited suitable to and used for the purpose of its undertaking. The word "undertaking" is defined in section 2 (c).

The Company contemplates erecting, on part of its land over the Lower Tram Station, certain residential flats, and the object of this amending Ordinance is to include such flats in any sale under Section 12 unless the Governor in Council by notice in writing declares that the land and the building are to be excluded from the sale.

Mr. Rudolf Friml, the film producer and song-writer, of the Peasula Hotel, left the Colony on the board the north-bound s.s. President

THEFTS REPORTED ON TILAWA

Three Officers Find Cabins Rifled

Three ship's officers of the B.I. Steam Navigation Company's vessel s.s. Tilawa are ruefully examining their pocket books and cash balances and wondering whether they will ever see the money and articles which were removed from their respective cabins on Friday at the Kowloon Wharf by culprits who obtained duplicate keys and made off with over $110.

Mr. W. G. Amy, Chief Officer of the s.s. Tilawa, reports that between 1.30 and 2.30 p.m. on Friday someone entered his cabin with a duplicate key and removed a watch, valued at $20, and $70 in Singapore currency from his cabin drawer.

Mr. Taylor, the wireless operator, reports that someone entered his cabin the same way and removed 12 Indian rupees, valued at $8.60, while Mr. West, the Second Officer, was similarly robbed of $20 in Hong Kong currency and an English 5-shilling piece.

WHITE BUTTERFLIES FROM WELLINGTON TO HONG KONG

DIARY OF A WONDERFUL SEA JOURNEY

(By MRS. T. W. LEWIS)

WHITE butterflies in the sunshine of a garden in Wellington, New Zealand, hovering over the gaily coloured flower-beds, resting, rising in a cloud as a diligent gardener passes by, trowel clasped in her gloved hand, seeking the refreshment of tea after time well spent.

"All over the mignonette and the lavender! What am I to do about them?" she wails plaintively.

Five weeks later, White butterflies in a garden in Hong Kong are fluttering, chasing each other from flower to flower, rising in a cloud as the garden coolie passes by, watering-can in hand.

"Why, they're exactly the same here, half the world away!" exclaims the New Zealander.

And Hong Kong itself bears other resemblances to Wellington, notably in its harbour aspect, and in the view from The Peak, especially at night when the differences of detail are obliterated and the embroidery of lights is a-twinkle. Commercial buildings are set round the water's edge on reclaimed land, and houses, climbing the shrub-grown hillsides, are supported on rocked-up levelled terraces in Hong Kong as in Wellington.

A Sydney Summer

And linking together these two far-apart British cities, which bear so strong a family likeness to one another, is a four-weeks' journey through one of the most lovely of the world's waterways.

Three days from Wellington, across the Tasman sea—which has very kindly moments in spite of the tempestuous outbursts for which it is so famous—brings the New Zealand traveller to Sydney, the pride of New South Wales, the largest and most important city of the Empire south of the Line. Here the traveller stays for a few lovely summer days in early February. Its shining silver beaches are patterned with gay bathers, and bordered with surf riders slapping their way through the spray of great rolling breakers. Its gardens are dripping with the brilliant colours of hibiscus, oleanders, zinnias and salvia, the lawns and many of the streets shaded by the huge branches of Morton Bay figs and South Australian almonds. The gaily painted trams, leaf-green and cream, go clanging up and down the busy city streets; the huge shops are crowded with bargain hunters, for the sales are on; and private cars and taxis are released left and right in floods at stated intervals by the traffic lights and the semaphoring white-gloved hands of "cops."

And over all, a proof of man's ultimate victory over nature, is the curving arch of the Great Bridge.

Against No. 1 wharf at Circular Quay, in a quiet seclusion of her own, below a high garden wall festooned with the heavy drapery of a mauve flowered creeper, lies the A. and O. steamer "Taiping" in the mid-day heat, ready to set her face North on the road to China. There is the bustle of farewell, the excitement of departure; flowers and streamers, laughter and a few tears; and she is off and through the Heads, bearing a company of whom each, from the moment of leaving Sydney till the arrival at Kowloon, is a proud part-owner of one of the most delightful luxury yachts afloat.

Luxury Yachting

For it requires no great effort of imagination to achieve the actual possession of the most coveted of all means of ocean transport when delightful hosts invite their guests to make themselves at home. The "Taiping", 5,000 tons, perfectly proportioned, with white and gold and blue where decoration should be; with cane lounge chairs on immaculate decks, and a white-clad Chinese boy at every spot where the slightest wish of "master" or "mistress" is likely to indicate itself; with the music of a piano and violin wafted out of the casement windows of the lounge on the breeze from huge electric fans, and the gentle melody of a Canadian song to announce meal times; and with the entire responsibility for safety and comfort in the eminently capable hands of a popular captain and his officers, with a host of Chinese crow to do their bidding—the "Taiping" is the answer to the most extravagant dreams of a world gone mad on cruising. It is ours—mine—yours—for nineteen days, during which time nothing occurs to dispel this charming delusion.

There are sports; a programme carried out with vigorous and cheerful response to the demands of the committee; dancing on deck in the evenings; gay little cocktail parties on deck before dinner; all happy and friendly and serene; a delightful holiday.

The Barrier Reef

The way itself lies, after passing Brisbane, inside the Great Barrier Reef, winding between recurring chains of islands and the mainland of North Australia, until Thursday Island is reached. Then comes another maze of the New Guinea and Philippine groups, the "Taiping" picking out its mysterious track, sometimes slowing to half-speed to ensure safety, or to allow the travellers to get a close view of the shore of some interesting land. Sight of land is seldom lost, and the interest of watching the characteristic changes in its aspect, as stretch after stretch of this almost inland sea is traversed, is enough to keep up a continuous shimmer of excitement. Days of sparkling seas and sunshine, of sweltering heat tempered by the breeze of the north-east monsoon, merge through the sunset hour, when the heavenly conflagration in the west paints its reflection on the whole surrounding picture, to nights of brilliant moonlight, or with stars dusted thickly over "that inverted bowl."

The ports of call are:—Brisbane, hot, with fine buildings, crowded city streets and eucalyptus-grown heights, where the cool breeze wafts its fragrance through the delicate green of gum-tips, and from where marvellous views can be had over miles and miles of fertile plains; Townsville, two days later, the little town encircling the rock-tipped Mount that thrusts its head abruptly up from the flats about the edge of mangrove swamps and curving sandy bay. Hard bright sun on the paved streets, the stone and concrete of commercial buildings, and on the brilliance of bouganvillan, hibiscus, and the growing colours of variegated shrubs in the gardens of the bungalows beyond. You can drive right round the Mount—right through Townsville—in 20 minutes.

The Coral Sea

Twenty-four hours later comes Cairns, a gem of a town lying at the feet of its sugar-growing plateau and a broken semi-circle of wooded mountains. A dear little place, in a lovely setting.

Then, after eight days' steaming among some of the most beautiful patches of the way—across that amazing Coral Sea—comes Thursday Island, remote and lovely. Seen first through a screen of the masts of pearlers lying at anchor in the bay, the dwellings go mounting to the top of the tree-covered uplands, rising from the level on which warehouses, hotels, and native huts are collected among the stores and offices. Exquisite and far away; heat and big trees, a yellow road, creepers and flowers; that is the impression a day at Thursday Island gives the passer-by.

Another eight days, and the "Taiping" is lying in Manila harbour, waiting in the opal mists of early morning, outside the breakwater, for the doctor.

Manila Contrasts

A day spent in Manila would take a week to describe, talking like a gramophone all the time. Fascinating medley of Old Spain, modern America; Filipinos, Portuguese, Chinese, and Japanese; a city sleeping, dreaming of the glories of the past; a city wide awake, fully aware of the possibilities of the future. The contribution of wide paved roads and narrow cobbled ways, of unglazed windows and buildings showing the lavish use of glass that marks the newest architecture; of bridges ancient and bridges modern; of ornate new structures built round the crumbling grey stonework of centuries-old courtyards; colour, heat, smells, brilliant flowers and huge shady trees, beauty indescribable; scrupulous cleanliness and unspeakable dirt. No traveller should leave the road until he has at least seen Manila and felt the lure of her extraordinary appeal.

And then Hong Kong. "Was that a thrush singing in the walnut tree outside my window as the sun came up?" asked the New Zealander.

enter the final to meet the Police on April 13.

Men To Watch
"Darkie" Chan, Tsui Ah-fai, and Ho Kar-keung will be the Athletic players worth watching, for each are in a class by themselves.

Ho Kar-keung is just as good as Fung King-cheong, and on his present form can be adjudged the best leader we have in the Colony today. Why he was never given an Interport trial is one of the greatest mysteries of the season.

The South China Danger
Yeung Shui-yick, one of the Colony's fastest right-wingers, and Henry Young, a very promising half-back, will probably stand out in the South China team, as both have contributed largely to their team's success so far in the competition.

Pau Ka-ping, whose return to soccer is welcomed on all sides, will be in goal for South China, while their two full-backs, Chung Chi-ying and Yu Hing-yuen, are fairly safe, and should come through with colours flying if they are not badly rattled by "Darkie" Chan and Ho Kar-keung.

The following are the teams:—
Athletic:—Sui Tim-lim; Wong Shek-ping; Mak Shiu-ling; Ng Tak-wing; Tsui Ah-fai; Ho Chor-yin; Leo Hung-ching; Yeung Kan-po; Ho Kar-keung; Chan Chun-wo (Darkie Chan) and Fung King-yu.

"South China, B"—Pau Ka-ping, Chung Chi-ying, Yu Hing-yuen; Leo Kam, Lau Tak-po, Henry Young, Yeung Shui-yick, Lai Shiu-wing, Tsang King-ki, Cheuk Shek-kam and Lee Shek-yau.

Proceeding the main feature, the South China Juniors and the East Lancs will battle for the right to meet the Engineers in the final of the Junior Shield, which also takes place on April 18.

In the League programme the

Stranger's Fine Tackling
In tackling, Strango was very quick and deadly, and the manner in which he stopped Johnston and Tommy Pile on occasions, when it appeared certain that the Police would score, evoked well merited applause from the onlookers.

Fellow Impresses
The Club halves, on the defensive for the greater portion of the match, gave a very inferior display, Robertson being the only one to show his true form. Skinner wandered too much, and left Johnston a clear field. The centre-half tried hard to get his forwards moving, but his passes were invariably stopped by the quick interception of the Police halves before they reached their man. Andy Duncan worked hard during the opening exchanges, and gave Tommy Pile little rope, but the Police right-winger proved far too fast and tricky for him in the second half, beating him with ease.

The Club forwards, without Howe to lead them, were a weak line, Forrow being the only one to adapt himself to the new order. The inside-right gave one of the best displays of the season, and was the only forward to threaten danger to the Police charge. His partnership with Fowler in the opening half was brilliant, and the clever way in which he drew the defence before sending out the ball to Fowler earned the admiration of everyone watching.

Hill and Bickford could make little or no impression on Brooks and Blackburn, and Howe was too well guarded by Gough to do any damage. The Police won the toss, and Green quickly sent Tommy Pile away with a splendid long pass, but Strango neatly stopped the winger when an early goal looked likely. The opening exchanges were fast, considering the intense heat, and play was mostly in the centre of the field. Perkins saved a shot from Howe, and once Blackburn only just stopped Fowler in time, when the Club outside right was right through. The Club were playing well at this stage, the Police taking time to settle down.

Police Open Scoring
After 35 minutes, the Police took the lead. After steady pressure for 10 minutes, the Police right-winger sent hard over to Moss, whose shot was turned over the bar by Rodger. From the ensuing corner, the Police kept the ball in the Club area, and eventually Johnston rushed in to kick the ball out of Rodger's hands into the net, after what appeared to be a misunderstanding between Strango and 'Keeper'.

The Club made a rally just before the interval, but Howe headed into Perkins' arms, and the whistle sounded with the Police in the lead. Throughout the second half the Police were definitely on top, and only the splendid defensive work of Rodger and his two backs kept the Police from adding to their score.

Robertson Saves Goal
Twice Tommy Pile sent Johnston through, and each time Rodger splendidly saved the centre-forward's shots. Green sent just behind when well placed, and a terrific drive by Stephens brought Rodger full-length to push round the post. Just before the end Johnston was once more sent through by Pile, but Robertson came across and stopped him when in the act of shooting.

Police:—Perkins; Blackburn, C. Pile, Brooks, Gough, Parker; T. Pile, Stephens, Johnston, Green and Moss. Club:—Rodgers; Gamble, S. Strango; Robertson, Skinner, Duncan; Fowler, Forrow, Howe, Hill and Bickford.

ENGLAND AND IRELAND STAGE HOCKEY TRIAL

INTERNATIONAL PREPARATION

TO-DAY'S FINAL GAME

Some good hockey should be witnessed on the East Lancashire Regiment's ground at Shamshuip this morning when an English eleven will oppose an Irish eleven in both countries' final trials in preparation for the international hockey tournament, which commences next Thursday at King's Park.

The England team is a very strong one, almost as good as the Colony eleven, with Fowler in goal instead of Hollingsworth, who has been temporarily dropped, pending the trial.

Good Defence
Cox and E. V. Reed should form a stout defence, while Parker, W. A. Reed and Lt. Williams are just as good.

Dawson and Garthwaite are two excellent inside-forwards, and Senior combines well with either. The Irish team is composed entirely of the Services, with Flt. Lt. Lascelles Lt. Ravenhill and Lt. Pearce standing out above the others.

The game commences at 10.15 a.m. and the teams are:—
England Probables:—F. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.); Cox (East Lancs) and E. V. Reed (Club); Parker (Police), W. A. Reed (Club) and Lt. Williams (East Lancs); Lt. Robinson (East Lancs); Lt. Garthwaite (H.K.S.R.A.); W. O. Souler (A.E.C.); Lt. Dawson (East Lancs) and Driver (East Lancs).

Ireland Probables:—A. B. Woolley (H.M.S. Suffolk); Cpl. Kennedy (E. Lancs) and L/Cpl. Dinellon (E. Lancs); L/Cpl. Murphy (E. Lancs); Lt. Ravenhill (H.K.S.R.A.) and Lt. Cotter (Lincolns); Cpl. Hensley (E. Lancs); Pto. Gamble (E. Lancs); Lt. Pearce (H.K.S.R.A.); Flt. Lt. Lascelles (H.M.S. Hermes) or A. N. Other, and Pte. Noon (E. Lancs).

Miss Ferguson was the outstanding half-back for the winners, her spilling being a feature of a flawless display.

Miss P. Gittins played a wonderful game at inside-left for the losers and had very bad luck on several occasions.

Her sister, Miss I. Gittins, although playing a splendid defensive game as a fourth half-back, spilt innumerable openings by being out of position.

The Saints commenced with a goal-keeper, and this, to a great extent, was responsible for the goal by which they lost the game. In the second half, they dispensed with a goal-keeper, and Miss Landolt was brought up as an extra back.

EASTERN DEFEAT UNIVERSITY

The Eastern defence was never severely tested. The Eastern forwards were in good form, particularly Ung Tsai Po, their outside-right, and Cheng Shui-hong, their ex-Interport leader.

The game commenced with the Eastern pressing, but there was no scoring in the first half.

Twenty minutes before the end, the Eastern staged a series of dangerous attacks and were rewarded shortly before the final whistle when Ung Tsai Po seized an opportunity to net with a fast ball from close range.

Eastern:—Lam Kee; Fung Yu-wai, Lai Ting-tsai; Ng Ying-kay, Lau Kim-fai, Chan Yan-fat; M. Sahban, Ung Tsai-po, Cheng Shui-hong, Kwok Ying-wai and Leo Sing-yong.

SAPPERS BEAT HOLDERS IN JUNIOR SHIELD

Navy Take Lead

Chances were being missed by both sides, but eventually the Navy took the lead when Dadds beat Boyling and scored with a low cross-drive.

There was no further score before the interval, and upon the resumption, the Engineers attacked strongly, Howlett's splendid header being well caught and cleared by Phillips. The Navy maintained continuous pressure, but weak shooting on the part of Ryan, Bennett, and Bennett, wasted innumerable chances.

Once Ryan received from Dadds, and with only Sellek to beat from 5 yards, tapped the ball feebly to the goalkeeper when a goal looked certain.

Sappers Equalise

The Engineers' forwards had had little of the play up to this stage, but a breakaway by Budden threatened danger, and the inside-right's quick pass to Darby gave the centre-forward an opening, and he beat Phillips with a hard, high drive which glanced off the bar into the net.

Incensed by this unexpected reverse, the Navy redoubled their efforts to score, but the Engineers kept them out until full time was reached. Bennett had three chances to give his side the lead, but Sellek easily saved his efforts, though one shot glanced off the post when he was well-beaten.

The Winning Goal

In the first two minutes of extra time the Engineers scored the winning goal. Howlett sent Creagh away, and the winger sent hard over to Callard, who beat Phillips with a beautiful cross-drive.

From this point to the end, the Engineers held the upper hand, and a clean and interesting match concluded with the R.E.'s gaining the right to play in the final.

capable of leading the halves, however, the lot could not have fallen on more capable shoulders.

Gerloff, at left-half, gave a remarkable display for a newcomer to the game, and his passes up to Mueller were almost perfect. He spoiled well, but has yet to learn the use of the reverse stick shot.

German Forwards Good

The five German forwards gave a fine display and showed good understanding for a team which has only played together on not more than four occasions.

Welsing, on the right-wing, was very fast, but was apt to mishit, while Lange spoiled well. He could improve his play by not being so impetuous.

Hess Is Best Forward

Sander was excellent as the leader and was well supported by Hess, who was easily the outstanding forward in the team. The latter's passing was beyond reproach while he fed his winger, Mueller, with good ground passes.

Solk and White shone in the Y.M.C.A. defence, while E. Fowler was easily the best half-back on display.

S. Fowler and W. J. Brown were the pick of the forwards.

Balman Scores

Balman opened the scoring with a shot from the edge of the circle which entered the net off May's foot.

A few minutes later S. Fowler culminated a brilliant dribble with a wonderful shot from an almost impossible angle and the ball entered the net above Ammann's head.

In the second half, the "Y" went further ahead through Brown who netted following several excellent saves by Ammann.

A few minutes from time Welsing tore down the right touchline to flash over a perfect centre to Sander, and the German leader made no mistake.

Y.M.C.A.—A. H. Moss; E. F. Solk

Impelletiere pluckily came out for the ninth round, though obviously still punch-drunk, and, after 38 seconds, his seconds threw in the towel with their man, who had staggered helplessly round the ring during the round, lying entirely unguarded against the ropes.—Reuter.

FORMER WORLD CHAMPION
Carnera formerly ruled the roost of heavyweights, but lost the crown on June 14 last year to the hard-hitting Baer by the technical knockout route. Before he was dethroned he successfully defended his title against Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque Woodchopper, and Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia.

The giant Italian has made impressive showings since losing the title, with his eyes directed toward another crack at the championship, which now reposes on the head of the youthful play-boy, Max Baer.

CARNERA'S COMEBACK
In his last bout Carnera showed he still had the punches when he technically knocked out Irving Kalusner in the sixth round of their bout. On December 1 last year he decisively dethroned Victorio Campolo of Argentina, another ring giant, at Buenos Aires, after 12 rounds of slugging.

Impelletiere, who startled the boxing world in 1933 by winning practically all the bouts he engaged in that year, is regarded by many as a dangerous fighter for any man in his division. He is rugged and tough.

PROMISING CAREER

The 24-year-old New Yorker, who stands 6 feet 7 1/2 inches, has fought many of the promising contenders in the heavyweight division, among them being Walter Neusel of Germany, Tommy Loughran, Jose Santa, and Billy Walker.

Neusel, who scored a victory over Impelletiere in 1933, was recently eliminated from the current heavyweight tournament by his own countryman, Max Schmeling, former holder of the crown.

As the situation now stands, the challenger for Baer's title revolves around Carnera, Schmeling, and Art Lasky.

King Levinsky, until recently one of the foremost challengers, has been wiped out of the picture by a knockout defeat he suffered at the hands of Baer on December 28 at Chicago in a four rounds exhibition bout.

capable of leading the halves, however, the lot could not have fallen on more capable shoulders.

Gerloff, at left-half, gave a remarkable display for a newcomer to the game, and his passes up to Mueller were almost perfect. He spoiled well, but has yet to learn the use of the reverse stick shot.

German Forwards Good

The five German forwards gave a fine display and showed good understanding for a team which has only played together on not more than four occasions.

Welsing, on the right-wing, was very fast, but was apt to mishit, while Lange spoiled well. He could improve his play by not being so impetuous.

Hess Is Best Forward

Sander was excellent as the leader and was well supported by Hess, who was easily the outstanding forward in the team. The latter's passing was beyond reproach while he fed his winger, Mueller, with good ground passes.

Solk and White shone in the Y.M.C.A. defence, while E. Fowler was easily the best half-back on display.

S. Fowler and W. J. Brown were the pick of the forwards.

Balman Scores

Balman opened the scoring with a shot from the edge of the circle which entered the net off May's foot.

A few minutes later S. Fowler culminated a brilliant dribble with a wonderful shot from an almost impossible angle and the ball entered the net above Ammann's head.

In the second half, the "Y" went further ahead through Brown who netted following

The whole school, buildings, he should want to know. He was playing fields and all, lay under a cloud till five when it was announced that the victim was sitting up, declaring that he felt perfectly all right and demanding to be allowed to return to ordinary life. The doctor had seen him and could find no injury.

At about half past six Champ-nown, after long debate, nerved himself to go up to the sick bay and inquire how the boy was getting on. He might even be allowed to see him. After all, why shouldn't he? It was only natural

With beating heart he went up the leaded stairs and down the long, bare passage, decorated only with the green baize door he heard voices in the anteroom and stopped short.

"Very well, Matron. Keep him where he is till bedtime and then let him go back to the dormitory."

"No, thank you, Mr. Bevan. I'm going to keep him where he is all night and sit up with him, too."

"Really, Matron, I must say I think you're making too much of this. You've heard Dr. Slater's opinion. Fussing like this will only create a bad impression. The school is quite sufficiently upset as it is. You'd much better let him go down."

"No thank you, Mr. Bevan. This is my responsibility."

"Really, Matron—"

Stepping back, Champ-nown silently closed the door. It would be injudicious to go in at the moment. He could inquire again later....

He was a little late for breakfast the next morning, and made his way self-consciously up the big hall between the tables, half-anxious and half-pleased at the occasional cries of "Good morning, sir," which greeted him as he passed.

He never knew whether to acknowledge them or not.

When he reached the top table he noticed with surprise that the headmaster was absent. Only three of the men were there, silent, with long faces.

"Haven't you heard?"

"Heard what?"

"About Henderson."

"Henderson? What about him?"

"Died in the night."

"No... Good God."

"Yes. Sat up suddenly in bed, squinted, cried out and then fell back dead."

The room began to spin around Champ-nown. Half-conscious, he heard the hushed voices.

"By Jove, it's a feather in Matron's cap, anyway. Lucky she insisted on sitting up with him. Bevan will be thankful enough to her when it comes to the inquiry."

As soon as he regained proper consciousness of his surroundings, Champ-nown felt himself unable to eat. He swallowed a few mouthfuls of his coffee, then made his way out. As he did he passed the Matron coming in, grimly justified. Two minutes later he was knocking at the door of the headmaster's study.

"I can't see you now, Champ-nown. I'm—that is, there's a great deal to do."

"I've only just come to tell you... to hand in my resignation."

The man was not listening. His back was turned. He was ferreting among papers. He looked pale, ill, blotchy and old.

"Yes, yes, yes. Well, come later on, Champ-nown. I really can't see you now."

Suddenly Champ-nown stamped uncontrollably.

"I resign, I tell you," he shouted.

MOTORING NOTES

BOOM IN MOTOR INDUSTRY

Large Number Of New Cars Registered

The boom in the motor industry is continuing, according to figures of new motor-car registrations in October, just issued by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders.

The number of new private cars registered was 17,966, or 40 per cent. more than in October 1933.

Similarly, goods vehicles registrations advanced by 23 per cent. to 6,291.

It is believed in trade circles that the improvement will be maintained.

In this event the record production of 256,866 private cars and 85,633 goods vehicles during 1933-34 will be easily surpassed in the current production year, which ends on September 30 next.

"I resign. Do you understand? I resign!"

Then he turned around and ran away, blundering down the passage, talking to himself and sobbing. At a corner he ran into Forsyth. The younger man's pupils contracted to pin-points. He stared after the retreating figure, then uttered a long, low whistle.

"Well," he exclaimed, "whoever would have thought he'd take it like that!"

But Champ-nown was not weeping for the dead. He was weeping because, with a searing flash, he had seen the thing which his calling had made of him. He did not feel sorrow. He felt simply that Henderson had escaped him, that he was cheated. In a mad corner of his mind he would have wished that afternoon to have gone up to the sick bay, taken the corpse and set it in the empty class-room that justice might be satisfied.

TREATING BRAKES THAT SQUEAK

A Few Useful Remedies

The fact that the brakes squeak when the pedal is applied does not necessarily indicate that they are dangerously defective, but that there is some irregularity in either the shoes or the drum.

When it has been determined by careful observation which brake is the offender, the best course is to remove the drum and examine it and the shoes. It might be that there is a high spot on the brake lining, or its surface has become glazed and hardened by dirt and long use. Often a good effect will be produced if the linings are scrubbed with petrol and any high parts rasped down.

Give special attention to the chamfered ends of the linings. It is, of course, most unwise to apply oil to the faces of the shoes in the hope that it will smooth out trouble, but a light dressing with flake graphite is said to be permissible, and while not making the brake permanently ineffective, will, so to speak, take off the rough patches and often remove the annoyance.

UNSPINTERABLE GLASS MERITS

Merely Cracks When Hit With Baseball

Some striking demonstrations to show the added protection afforded motorists by the use of non-shatterable glass in automobiles were carried out at the World's Fair in Chicago. At one exhibit alone, more than 50,000 square feet of "safety" and plateglass were broken by about 100,000 visitors to the show, who were invited to hurl baseballs at squares of both types of glass to convince themselves, as well as the crowds watching, that whereas ordinary glass shattered and splintered, the "safety" glass cracked.

Another exhibitor demonstrated the protective qualities of "safety" glass by shooting steel balls an inch in diameter at sheets of the glass. The most spectacular exhibition was presented by a car manufacturer who employed a famous American driver to overturn cars at high speed on a track in the grounds, to demonstrate the structural strength of their bodies and the protection afforded by non-splintering glass.

In other tests, men sat inside cars with their faces against the "safety" glass, while baseball pitchers hurled baseballs at the windows from the outside.

The Best Opening Lead In Contract

(By Lt-Col. H. M. Beasley)

WHAT is my best opening lead?

All Contract players are well aware that a large number of No-Trump Contracts would be defeated if they knew the correct answer to this question.

The selection of the best opening lead against a No-Trump Contract may be simple and straightforward; on the other hand, if your partner has been silent during the auction and the bidding by your opponents has not provided you with any useful information, your task may not be an easy one.

When defending against a Three No-Trump Contract you have no time to lose and must endeavour to win or develop five tricks as quickly as possible in order to defeat the Contract. Your best method, therefore, is to commence by establishing a long suit.

This is, of course, simple if you have any long suit in which there is a reasonable hope of developing tricks.

When To What

It is possible that your best suit contains certain tenace combinations such as Ace, Queen x x—or King, Jack x x. It is inadvisable to lead from any of these combinations, and preferable to wait until the suit is led either by your partner or by the declarer.

When you are in this predicament it is better to select some other suit—that is to say, the top card of a doubleton or a worthless three card suit—and hope that it may develop some winning tricks in your partner's hand.

With reference to the above point a correspondent writes: "What would be the best lead under the following circumstances? There is only one round of bidding, as follows:—

Bidding:—
W. N. E. S.
1 Club. No bid. 1 N.T. No bid
All pass. South's hand is as under. What should he lead?

S.—K J 6 4
H.—9 6 2
D.—Q 10 3
C.—A 10 4

The Contract in this case, as you will notice, is only One No Trump by East.

A bid of One No Trump does not indicate a strong hand. The selection of the best opening lead therefore does not present much difficulty.

You will certainly not lead a Club or open your short suit in Diamonds. You have therefore, the choice of opening from your best suit—Spades—or your weak still—Hearts. I prefer, in this situation, open with a small Spade. If the bidding had been as follows:—

W. N. E. S.
1 Club. No bid. 3 N.T. No bid
It is clear that East has a very strong hand and in this case your best way of defeating the Contract is to conceal your strength and make an opening lead of the nine of Hearts.

Of course, these short-suit opening leads are more or less of a guess, but the weaker you are in a suit the stronger your partner is likely to be.

The lead may or may not be profitable. However, there is the compensation feature that in any case you are preserving your defensive strength, as under the circumstances you cannot possibly expect your partner to give you much assistance.

Animal Symbolism In China

Taoist Teachings In Early Times

Dragon Representatives Of The Elements

(By Phyllis Juby)

THE animals of China were always the medium through which were taught the philosophies, ethics and religion. They attained importance as they became the symbol for some higher power of magic or of virtue.

The Dragon was always the highest symbol of wisdom and of power; it could transform itself from the smallest worm to a size big enough to cover the earth. The embodiment of the operating force in nature, it caused change and evolution through generations—Dragon of the clouds, the rain-giver, refreshing the earth and bringing prosperity and happiness to the people.

Dragons of the Elements

One legend of the evolution of dragons tells that the water dragon was regarded as the symbol of the scholar, the land dragon as symbol of the statesman, the dragon of the skies was sign of the Emperor or Son of Heaven himself. The throne of the Imperial palace was the "dragon's seat," and the Emperor's anger "the reversal of the dragon's scales."

Artists were known to paint such wondrous dragons that black clouds arose from the paper, pools of thunder were sent forth and the dragon vanished into the heavens.

After Buddhism was introduced into China, the priests could summon one hundred and eighty-six dragons to perform functions such as causing the wind to blow, and the rivers to be filled. The dragon in Buddhism responded to instruction—in one instance thirty-eight thousand dragons were said to have assembled to hear the sermon of a priest.

The dragon was obviously an issue from the serpent which always symbolised death and resurrection, life perpetually renewed. It was believed, too, to possess the power of metamorphosis, producing droughts and floods.

Never-ceasing Conflict

The tiger and the phoenix are the two great associates of the dragon. The White Tiger was, in ancient times, the spirit of a "Star of Great Whiteness" in the west, just as the White Hare dwelt in the moon. It belongs, though, in mythology, to the nether world and exercises power over the demons and spirits. Its image was used as a fetish in ceremonies of magic; tiger amulets were proof against bad luck, and bronze tiger-heads were buried with the dead. Officers drank a concoction of tiger bones and teeth to imbibe the powerful spirit of that animal, and its image was placed at the entrance of the magistrates' courts to terrify the hearts of culprits. Fever patients were told tiger tales to rouse courage to fight off the spectres of delirium.

But these images of the Taoist faith were changed with the advent of Buddhism. The tiger was then exalted to immortality as the virile symbol of the power and glory of the Buddhist faith. It became a favourite symbol of artists, always associated with heroes of courage.

Still the conflict between the Dragon and the Tiger never ceased. And as a result it was believed that in times of drought tiger bones should be dropped into the wells of the dragon; this would make him angry and cause a storm.

The symbol of the lion came to China only with Buddhism, and soon became known as the "civilisation tiger," taking on some of the tiger's characteristics. But it later took on the form of a dog with flowing mane and was said to hold the sun by the power of its paw.

The Mystical Phoenix

The Phoenix was known to combine the elegance and beauty of all birds, and its colours symbolised the five cardinal virtues: honesty, justice, uprightness, fidelity and benevolence. It lived on the seeds of the bamboo and drank only at sacred wells. The Chinese mystics said: "Its head is like heaven, its eyes like the sun, its back like the crescent moon, its wings like the wind, its tail like the trees and plants, its feet like the earth." When it sings, its scale is of five tones corresponding to the five virtues; low and sonorous, or high and softly mellow as bells.

The appearance of the Phoenix was rare and always an auspicious augury. It is said that Confucius wished the Phoenix to come within his sight, or his doctrines would not be carried out. Death was a flight on the back of the divine Phoenix. The phoenix, often coupled with the Phoenix, symbolises the beauty of virtue.

Next to the Phoenix, the crane was regarded as a bird of great favour. It was the spirit of longevity, not only in this life, but in all life. The Taoists believed it had the power of bringing celestial souls back to earth.

Longevity Symbols

The bat, too, is an important symbol of longevity and happiness; and its design is ever attached to objects carrying good wishes or congratulations. It is associated with the cloud motive: "May your longevity and happiness be as great as heaven is high." The design of "Five Bats," so often seen on the lids of gift boxes, is an emblem of the five blessings: virtue, riches, offspring, long life and a happy death. It is also placed over the doors of homes to attract those blessings.

The popular symbol of longevity and income—two very important factors in Chinese life—is the deer. And riding on the pure white deer was the peace that came to those who had died in the practice of magic.

The appearance of the unicorn was a happy omen in the world, bringing good government with prosperity and longevity to the people. It was represented as having only one horn, and the philosophy it evoked was this: "The unicorn has but one horn, so the world should have but one ruler." It was supposed to walk in joy, embodying the Spirit of Spring; a creature of great gentleness, while its horn was the symbol of benevolence.

The Tortoise In Magic

The tortoise, or Green-dressed Messenger (so-called because of the plant parasites often growing from its shell) was combined in symbol with the serpent. They were the symbol of warfare, and perhaps were represented together because each was unable to kill the other. "When the dragon and the tiger fight, both die, but when the tortoise and serpent fight, neither die." There is a tradition that the first written characters were derived from the markings on the back of the tortoise.

In ancient writings a divine tortoise was described as like jade with golden spots and two shining circles representing the sun and the moon. Its shell was worshipped as representing the dome of the sky; and since the Han dynasty, 206 B.C., it has been regarded as telling secrets of magic and has been consulted by fortune-tellers and geomancers. There are fortune-tellers in Hong Kong to this day, who sit in Hollywood Road poring over the magic of the tortoise.

The bull in China has always been used as the main beast of burden. It came in some way to be the symbol of knowledge of the true self; and its ferocity was likened to the moral struggle of the awakened soul. Being able to ride a bullock was an example of power to resist temptation. It is the emblem of Spring and agriculture, and at the Festival of Gracious Ploughing a pair of white bullocks are yoked to the sacred plough.

Scotland's Rugby Win

The Scots forwards were having the better of the argument in the tight scrums, but not sufficiently to give the backs any great advantage over their opposing centre three quarters.

ENGLAND OPEN SCORING

Touch-kicking kept Scotland on the offensive, but after 20 minutes, Heaton passed to Cranmer, who feinted out towards the wing, turned, and dropped a fine goal with his left foot to give England the lead.

Murdoch, Shaw, and Fyfe were then seen in a perfect three-quarter movement down the full length of the field. Fyfe kicked past Bough-ton and just beat him to the touch down. He converted the effort himself and Scotland led 5-4 after 25 minutes.

After another rush Lamble raced Bough-ton to touch down from a well-judged punt ahead by Shaw. Fyfe converted and Scotland deservedly led 10-4 at the interval.

SCOTS' NARROW ESCAPE

Soon after the resumption Bough-ton just missed from a penalty. Leyland and Heaton changed places, but this did not bring about any immediate success.

Cranmer made a glorious opening for Heaton, but the latter dropped the ball when well placed. Another great opportunity was lost when Heaton dropped Auty's pass. The fierce pressure exerted by the Eng-land fifteen was being spalled con-tinually by the winger's poor han-dling.

ENGLISH RALLY

The traditional English rally came 12 minutes from time when Cranmer side-stepped his way through the Scots' backs and passed to Booth who crashed over. Doughton failed to convert, the ball going the wrong side of the post.

Cranmer again broke through the centre and gave Booth a grand pass for the latter to cross in a favourable position. To every-body's surprise, however, the re-ference did not award a try; Cranmer's pass was evidently forward.

Scotland made several changes in the team which lost to Ireland on February 23, Forrest having replaced Johnston at right-wing three quarter, while Harry Lind, the Scottish captain of 1933-34, who was excluded from the un-successful team against Wales, but who was reinstated against Ireland, was again dropped.

From the left-centre three quarter position in favour of Murdoch. Dr. Tait was brought into the front row instead of G. Cottingham, who hooked against Ireland.

The following were the teams:—Scotland:—W. K. Marshall; Forrest,

F. A. CUP (Semi-Final)

London, Yesterday.
 Sheffield Wednesday to-day entered the final round of the Eng-lish F.A. Cup, when they defeated Burnley at Villa Park by three goals before an enormous crowd, while Bolton Wanderers shared two goals with West Bromwich Albion at Leeds, in the other semi-final tie.—Reuter.

The Wednesday have twice won the F. A. Cup, the last occasion being in the 1906-07 season when they beat Everton by the odd goal in three.

R. C. S. Dick, Murdoch, Fyfe; Shaw, Logan; Murray, Dr. Tait, R. M. Grove, J. Beattie, W. A. Burnet, Thom, Walters and Lambie.—Reuter.

England:—Boughton: Booth, Cranmer, Heaton and Leyland; Gadeny and Auty; Webb, Nicholson, Longland, Clarke, Dicks, Weston, Payne and Girdlan.

A Paris cable of March 5 stated that measures corresponding to those announced in the British White Paper were simultaneously being taken in France as a counter-move to German re-armament.

It was generally agreed that M. Flandin, would re-introduce the two-years' military service in the place of the one-year service, to bridge over the "lean years" 1935 to 1938.

The Prime Minister's health has further improved, and he is expected to attend Parliament on Monday.

He arrived in London from Che-quers yesterday and presided over the preliminary meeting of the Cab-inet Committee, which has been formed to consider the proposals submitted by Mr. Lloyd-George for tackling the unemployment problem.
